Nixon Defies Senate And Cox

. . .Committee Votes To Sue; Prosecutor Goes To Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Thursday defied demands from Congress and the government's special prosecutor for Watergate-related tape recordings and documents. The Senate Watergate committee voted unanimously to sue him, and the prosecutor challenged him in court.

Thus, an issue which began with a simple burglary 13 months ago was launched into an unprecedented constitutional test of strength certain to climax before the United States Supreme Court.

Nixon said through a White House spokesman that he would abide by a definitive ruling by the high court and expressed confidence that the eventual decision would uphold him.

The day's events began to unfold when Nixon notified the Senate Watergate committee by letter that he would not comply with the committee's two subpoenas. They demanded that he turn over his tape recordings, memoranda and documents bearing on the Senate's investigation of last year's wiretapping and burglary at the Watergate headquarters of the Democratic National Committee.

Nixon also wrote U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, in answer to a subpoena from Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, that he would not release nine tape recordings Cox sought. Nixon did, however, produce two of the documents Cox's subpoena asked.

Cox immediately asked for a court order requiring Nixon's compliance with the subpoena and Sirica gave the White House until 10 a.m., EDT, Aug. 7 to respond.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, read Nixon's letter to him at the opening of the day's nationally televised hearings. In the letter, Nixon said he would not give up his tapes but would produce some documents if the committee would be very specific about what documents it wanted.

Ervin branded that response totally unacceptable.

"We are not clairvoyant," he said. "You can't identify a document you've never seen."

The committee vice chairman, Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., then proposed that the committee take the President to court and the motion was adopted unanimously.

"The chair recognizes that there is no precedent for litigation of this nature," Ervin said. "I think this litigation is essential if we are to determine whether the President is above the law, and whether the President is immune from the duties and responsibilities of this kind that evolve upon all the other mortals that dwell in this land."

At issue are Nixon's contention that executive privilege and the doctrine of separation of powers permit him to withhold the tapes and documents, and the committee's insistence that its charter from the Senate permits it to subpoena White House material relevant to the Watergate investigation.

In a White House briefing, Charles A. Wright, an attorney for Nixon, told newsmen the President was prepared to turn over documents that deal strictly with political matters or that do not threaten the confidentiality of his relations with advisers.

Wright, who said he expects to argue Nixon's case in the courts, said he would construe all tape recordings to fall within the confidentiality category. But he added that if a tape should be discovered that was exclusively political in nature, "I think we would have to face fairly, squarely to that question."

"I would like to have it end as soon as it possibly can end," Wright said of the seemingly inevitable court test. "The sooner we can get to the bottom of Watergate the better off the country will be."

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren told newsmen earlier that Nixon "would abide by a definitive decision of the highest court."

But by saying Nixon would abide by a "definitive decision," Warren apparently was stopping short of promising Nixon would abide by any decision, regardless of what it was.

Wright suggested that should a Supreme Court ruling fail to deal fully with the constitutional question of separation of powers, the President might feel justified in continuing to challenge the subpoenas. Wright said the Supreme Court sometimes issued rulings that are less than definitive.

In his reply to Ervin, Nixon flatly rejected one subpoena which sought the tape recordings of five meetings between Nixon and then-White House Counsel John W. Dean III.

The other subpoena sought all records relating directly or indirectly to the "activities, participation, responsibilities or involvement" of 25 named individuals "in any alleged criminal acts related to the presidential election of 1972."

After reading the letter, Ervin reiterated his call for the President to comply fully with both subpoenas.

"The Constitution wouldn't collapse and the heavens wouldn't fall in" if Nixon turned over the material, Ervin said.

Baker, still seeking an out-of-court settlement, also proposed an independent panel, from outside the government, to review the tapes and documents and determine which are related to the Senate investigation.

Law College Project Wins Man's Release

By JIM PRATT
Star Staff Writer

Last Friday the 13th probably will be remembered by Stuart Carpenter as a very lucky day.

On that day he walked out of the Nebraska Penal Complex a free man.

His release was secured by a senior law student, William Dittrick, and a law professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Alan Saltzman, working in a law college program called the Nebraska Prisoners Legal Services Project.

In 1966, Carpenter was convicted in Washington County of breaking and entering and possession of burglary tools and was sentenced in district court to two three-year sentences.

Probation Ended

He was granted probation in May 1970, which lasted until June 1971 when the original sentence was reinstated. The district court which granted him probation had been so ordered by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Since June 1971, Carpenter has been in the penal complex or on parole.

The issue which brought the Legal Services Project into the case was whether Carpenter's year of probation should be counted as part of time served within the sentence.

Saltzman and Dittrick felt it should.

They argued his continued imprisonment was a violation of his constitutional rights. They tried and failed to obtain a writ of habeas corpus from the Lancaster County District Court, but eventually succeeded in the U.S. District Court.

Action Moot

Carpenter had been scheduled to be released July 26 and in the briefs filed by Saltzman and Dittrick they asked for federal court action since the issue would be moot by the time the Nebraska Supreme Court could hear it in September.

Carpenter was released July 13 after U.S. District Court Judge Robert Van Pelt agreed his constitutional rights were being violated by continued imprisonment.

Saltzman said this was "the first time we've gotten an order that immediately released someone," although the legal program has met with other successes.

Securing the release of illegally held convicts is not the only activity of the Legal Services Project, according to Saltzman.

One Success

The program has had one success so far in that area, Saltzman said.

Recently Saltzman and one of the nine senior law students enrolled this summer in the program fought and won a child custody case involving a woman serving time.

A welfare agency in Omaha sought custody of the woman's child, claiming the child's grandmother, who was caring for the child, was unfit for custody. The court disagreed.

Saltzman described the Legal Services Project as a clinical program where students have a chance to practice law.

Supervised

The enrolled students, after finishing two years of law school, were authorized to practice under the supervision of a lawyer, in this case Saltzman.

The project was begun in February of this year and is financed by the Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice and the University.

In two years, Saltzman said, The University will take over complete financing of the project.

The students receive credit and experience, but, like their professor, no fees for their services.

Six more students will join the project in the fall and the current nine will remain, Saltzman said.

Saltzman came to UNL from the University of Oklahoma in January of this year. He had taught at OU two years.

About the program, which keeps Saltzman and the students quite busy (they get more requests for help than they are able to handle), the professor said, "I'm excited, enthusiastic. I think we're going to be able to accomplish a lot."

Malone Center Faces Challenge

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Malone Community Center Thursday finalized its request to Lincoln Community Services (LCS) for its 1974 United Fund support and almost immediately was faced with a challenge for the funds from a new organization calling itself the Malone-Clinton Community Center.

The challenge was issued by Cherita Richardson, director of the Open Door Health Center, who said she was speaking for the new organization when she asked for the same subsidy to operate programs in the Malone and Clinton neighborhoods.

LCS Executive Director John Goessman told representatives of the new organization that since challenges are not permissible under LCS policies, any application for funds would have to be considered a new application to be reviewed by the LCS planning division.

After representatives of both the Malone Center and the new Malone-Clinton Center had left the meeting, the LCS subcommittee which heard the requests called for a review of the new agency's application by the end of August.

The challenge for Malone funds was issued during the subcommittee hearing after a long discussion on the 1974 budget request of the recently troubled Malone Community Center.

Personnel problems have plagued the center and its board for some time, and Malone board spokesman Clifton Bullock said Thursday that the board anticipates an entire turnover in staff in coming weeks.

Applications are now being received for an executive director to succeed Kay Thompson, who is retiring.

Two social workers have resigned at the request of the Malone board. Both of them were at the meeting Monday, accompanying Ms. Richardson.

Increasing Request

In its report to the subcommittee, the Malone board said it was increasing its request for United Fund subsidies by more than $9,000 to pay for capital improvements at the center at 22nd and T.

The improvements were recommended by an architect who evaluated the building as a part of an evaluation of several aspects of Malone operations by a number of consultants in the community.

Wright Robinson, Malone board treasurer, told the LCS subcommittee that the "capital improvements are needed very desperately."

Other board members said the improvements would upgrade areas neglected for the several years that it appeared University of Nebraska encroachment and Northeast Radial construction would necessitate a relocation of the center.

By board members said now it appears neither of those developments will materialize in the near future.

$75,860 Sought

The board told the LCS subcommittee it was seeking in 1974 a total United Fund request of $75,860 as a part of a $79,270 total Malone budget.

Other aspects of the evaluation report, one of the matters which has delayed LCS consideration of the Malone situation, Malone board members at first hesitated to discuss.

But then they agreed to make available to the LCS committee the entire report immediately. The report includes evaluations of several Malone programs.

Goessman and LCS agency relations chairman Richard McDaniel said the reports would have to be reviewed before final LCS action on the Malone budget.

Bullock assured the subcommittee that the Malone board has "not waited for the evaluation to be about Malone business," noting changes in personnel and programming have already been begun.

Bullock Speaks Up

When the challenge was issued by the new group, Bullock also spoke up, saying he's concerned about the job being done, not who gets the funds.

"A new breath of air could be in order," he said. "If a new organization can do a better job, I would pin flowers on them."

But he said he hopes "no one is deceived it's an easy job to be solved overnight."

Ms. Richardson told the group that she has filed as a candidate for the Malone directorship and intends to seek the directorship of the Malone-Clinton center too. The latter has no facility at the moment.

After the community spokesmen left, LCS staffers and subcommittee members said they believe the challenge may actually serve to bring together two groups in the area which have opposed each other in past.

They suggested there might be room for a joint effort in the area, but they said a Malone-Clinton proposal for LCS funding will be a rigorously reviewed as has been the request of the Malone Center and other LCS member agencies.

Anderson Pleads Guilty, Receives Life Sentence

LEXINGTON, (AP) — Jimmie Ray Anderson pleaded guilty Thursday to the murder of a Nebraska state trooper. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Amos, 28, was found shot to death in his cruiser on Interstate 80 near Lexington.

Court officials said the surprise pleas were entered as the result of plea bargaining.

The prosecution said Amos stopped a car in which the two were traveling because it was moving erratically.

The Andersons were chased and captured by other state troopers. Amos's .357 magnum service revolver was in their possession.

The court ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Mrs. Anderson, saying she would be sentenced within 90 days. Judge Stuart ordered that she be confined in the women's state reformatory at York until sentencing.

The two were in court only about 20 minutes.

Judge Stuart asked Anderson if he wished to comment before sentencing. He told Anderson to relate, in his own words, what happend the day Trooper Amos was killed.

Anderson stood before the court and said:

"Well your honor, I was under the influence of alcohol, became enraged, because I was arrested. There was a struggle and ended in the death of a highway patrolman, for which I am indeed very sorry. But I, as I reviewed the situation in my own mind, I can see that by my own admission I am guilty of the charge of the crime I am charged with, and that I possibly did premeditate the murder as an effort to become free from being arrested."

Stuart asked Anderson: "Did you as a matter of fact kill George Amos:

He replied: "I killed George Amos, yes sir."

U.S. Vetoes U.N. Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States vetoed a U.N. Security Council resolution Thursday that would have censured Israel's failure to withdraw from conquered Arab territory.

Calling the resolution "highly partisan and unbalanced," U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali cast the fifth American veto in the U.N. history and the fourth in less than a year.

He said the council had missed another chance to foster Arab-Israeli peace talks.

Thirteen of the 15 council members voted in favor of the eight-nation resolution that also expressed "serious concern at Israel's lack of cooperation" with Gunnar V. Jarring of Sweden, the U.N. special representative on the Middle East.

The Peking ambassador declined to participate, saying the resolution was not strong enough in condemning Zionists or in supporting Palestinians.

A negative vote by any one of the five permanent council members nullifies a resolution passed by a majority of nine or more. Besides the United States, the permanent members are the Soviet Union, China, Britain and France.

The veto climaxed the widest-ranging council review of the Mideast crisis since the 1967 Mideast war. The debate, requested by Egypt, over Israeli objections and American misgivings, was suspended in June for the summit of President Nixon and Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev of the Soviet Union.

Scali and other delegates expressed hope that the differences brought out in the council's debate would not extend to the Mideast mission which Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim will undertake on his own next month. He plans to visit Egypt, Israel and Jordan.

Senate Puts $3,000 Lid On U.S. Campaign Gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Thursday voted to put a $3,000 limit on individual contributions to the campaigns of presidential and congressional candidates.

The amendment by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., to a campaign reform bill was adopted by a 54 to 39 vote.

"The time has come to take elections off the auction block," Bentsen said as he and others deplored "big-money influence" in campaigns.

Bentsen argued that the contribution limits in the bill, $5,000 to Senate and House candidates and $15,000 to presidential candidates, were too high.

Under present law there is no limit on how much an individual can contribute to a candidate for federal office.

W. Clement Stone, Chicago insurance magnate, has told of contributing more than $2 million to President Nixon's campaigns in 1968 and 1972.

Bentsen, referring to this, said that "even though a man may have the purest of motives . . . it is a little difficult for the small contributor to buy it."

Adoption of Bentsen's amendment followed approval by voice vote of another amendment making national party committees responsible for presidential campaign spending.

The effect of the amendment, by Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., would be to prevent such groups as the Committee for the Reelection of the President from spending funds without the approval of the party's national committee.

The amendment applies to all disbursements of more than $1,000. Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., floor manager of the bill, said in accepting it that it was aimed at "the sort of thing that has developed in the Watergate hearings."

Sirica ordered the president to show why he shouldn't be ordered to release the tapes to the Watergate prosecutor, and the Senate Watergate Committee voted to start a separate court action to secure the recordings of the President's conversations with Watergate figures. Budget, Trade Deficits Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration Thursday happily reported reduced deficits both in the federal budget and the trade balance, and forecast a balanced budget for 1974 without any increase in taxes.

Administration spokesmen said the reduced deficits are important both in helping to reduce inflation at home and stabilize the U.S. dollar abroad.

"We're getting somewhere on the trade side just as we're getting somewhere on the fiscal side," Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said at a news conference.

Shultz said the budget deficit for fiscal 1973 was $14.4 billion, the difference between total federal expenditures of $246.6 billion and receipts of $232.2 billion.

While still sizable, the deficit was substantially below the January deficit forecast of $25 billion and compares with a fiscal 1972 deficit of $23.2 billion.

In a statement issued by Shultz, President Nixon said that with the continued "budgetary responsibility" shown by Congress, the nation should have a balanced budget of about $269 billion for fiscal 1974. The last time the United States had a balanced budget was in 1969.

The Commerce Department, meanwhile, reported the United States had only a $15.5 million trade deficit in June and an overall trade surplus of $22.9 million for the second quarter, the first period that exports exceeded imports since the first quarter of 1971.

The figures have been adjusted for seasonal variations.

The Commerce Department said the trade deficit for the first half of 1973 was $2.5 billion at an annual rate. It had previously forecast a 1973 deficit of between $2 billion and $4 billion this year, compared with a 1972 deficit of $6.9 billion.

Exports during June totaled $5,778.1 million compared with imports of $5,793.6 million.

For the first six months of 1973, exports were at an annual rate of $64.5 billion, up 31 per cent from last year, while imports were at a rate of $66.2 billion, only 19 per cent higher than last year.

Nixon said the improved budget figures for fiscal 1973, which ended June 30, were made possible because Congress helped keep spending within the $250 billion maximum that he called for last year.

Actual expenditures in 1973 were $3.2 billion below earlier estimates. The biggest cuts were in public assistance grants by the Department of Health Education and Welfare, $831 million, and special HEW benefits for disabled coal miners, $540 million.

Government receipts for fiscal 1973 were $7.2 billion above January estimates because of a big increase in receipts from corporate and individual income taxes, largely created by the country's business boom.

Shultz said reduced federal spending and a balanced budget will "provide the environment needed to combat inflation," but acknowledged they will not be sufficient in themselves.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said at another news briefing that the major cause of the country's inflation rate has been a 15 per cent decline in farm output since 1971, most of it this year.

Coupled with sharply rising income at home and increasing demand for U.S. agricultural goods abroad, the reduced output has "generated enormous pressure," he said.

The Commerce Department said there was a large gain in non-agricultural exports in the second quarter, which accounted for much of the trade improvement.

It said a major factor was improved trade with Japan, spurred by the Japanese policy of stockpiling purchases of U.S. products.

It added that exports may have benefited from the two dollar devaluations and the most recent decline of the dollar in foreign exchange markets.

Beef Ceiling Will Remain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dismissing industry predictions of impending meat shortages as exaggerated, the Nixon administration made clear Thursday it will stick by plans to maintain the price ceiling on beef through Sept. 12.

Spokesmen for the meat industry have been predicting serious shortages of beef starting next week if price relief is not granted at once.

Beef is the only food item still under a price ceiling. President Nixon lifted the price freeze for the rest of the food industry last week.

Both Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers dismissed the meat industry warnings and said the administration has no intention of lifting the price ceiling early.

Shultz said at a news conference that the government has been keeping daily track of the beef supply and found the meat industry is overstating its problems.

"We have checked reports of 12 closings of meat packers and nine were untrue," Shultz said.

Stein said at another news briefing that there is "a tendency to whomp up an appearance of crisis; certain people benefit from that."

Both Shultz and Stein indicated that there may be some temporary shortages, but emphasized their belief that they would not be serious.

Stein said he recognized that because of the price ceilings "there is a certain tendency for beef to be withheld."

Retirees Eat Less, Shoplift

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rising food prices have forced many retired people living on fixed incomes to eat fewer meals and some have even resorted to shoplifting food and vitamins, officials said Thursday.

Social workers and store officials said the situation was particularly acute in Miami Beach, where 61 per cent of the population of 85,000 is aged 65 and over.

Max Friedson, 74, chairman of the Congress of Senior Citizens, which has 100,000 members in Florida, estimated that some 500 to 1,000 elderly people in Miami Beach "simply cannot make ends meet" and are too proud to go on welfare.

"They get $80 to $90 a month in Social Security, they can't get on welfare and apartments cost between $110 and $150 a month," Friedson said. "They simply can't do it. For a couple, food costs about $100 a month. Some are existing on two meals a day."

In a one-mile-square area of south Miami Beach, Friedson said, 37,000 old people are living on fixed incomes, many of them union pensions.

More Than Half Of Wheat Crop Due For Export

©The New York Times

New York — The government shocked the nation's grain trade again by announcing that more than half the expected American wheat crop this year had been booked for export as of July 6.

The wheat crop year starts July 1.

As of July 6, exporters had registered 916 million bushels of wheat for export with the government. For the full 1972-73 crop year, exports aggregated 1.2 billion bushels, including sales of flour equivalent to 50 million bushels.

Change In Foreign Aid's Focus Approved; House Passes Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rejecting an effort to cut off all U.S. military assistance for Cambodia, the House approved a $2.8-billion foreign aid bill Thursday night focusing $650 million on the needs of poor countries.

The House approved the bill by only 5 votes, 188 to 183, its narrowest approval of foreign aid ever.

Overhaul of the U.S. aid program to focus $718 million on such needs as food production, nutrition and birth control was approved early in the day but the House chopped it down to $650 million just before final passage.

A second major reform—creation of a $1 billion-a-year credit fund to boost U.S. exports to poor countries—was rejected.

An amendment by Rep. Bella A. Abzug, D-N.Y., to cut off an estimated $150-million military aid in the bill for Cambodia was rejected 105 to 26.

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., said cutting off aid for Cambodia to defend itself after the U.S. bombing stops Aug. 15 "would be the most cruel position we could take."

An effort by Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., to cut President Nixon's $632-million request for postwar Indochina reconstruction aid down to $441 million was rejected 79 to 10.

The $2.8 billion bill includes $1 billion for economic development aid and $1.8 billion for military aid, including the $632 million for Indochina reconstruction.

Earlier in the day, the House rejected a series of amendments by Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, to cut the $718 million focus on poor countries' needs down to $300 million.

But just before final passage it approved the amendment by Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich., to cut the figure by $650 million.

The $650 million includes $300 million a year for food production and nutrition; $150 million for population planning and health; $90 million for education and certain job training and $110 million for selected development projects.

Creation of the $1 billion-a-year Export Development Credit Fund drafted by Morgan's committee was rejected 240 to 137.

Nixon Fills EPA, Justice Vacancies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced Thursday the nominations of Russell E. Train to head the federal environmental effort, and William D. Ruckelshaus as the No. 2 man in the Justice Department.

It is Ruckelshaus' fourth job assignment from President Nixon. He has been assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Civil Division, head of the Environmental Protection Agency and temporary director of the FBI.

Train was the President's personal environmental adviser as chairman of the White House Council on Environmental Quality.

In a news conference, Train said he asked the President for the nomination as administrator of the EPA.

Train declined to comment on specific environmental issues, saying only that "we're in a tough period that's going to test the patience and commitment of the American people."

He did say that solving America's energy problems would not, from his point of view, deflect the federal effort for clean air and water.

Train is a lawyer, former U.S. Tax Court judge and a former undersecretary of the Interior with a long, private, record of dedication to conservation causes.

He returned two days ago from a raft and trout fishing trip down Idaho's middle fork of the Salmon River. Entering the news conference he quipped: "The air's bad in here," referring to the cigarette smoke.

Train, in effect, replaces Ruckelshaus as administrator.

In a July 2 interview, Ruckelshaus said he would stay in the administration only if he could convince himself that he could help maintain "continuity."

Asked if he was disillusioned with the Nixon administration, he said: "The administration is too broad a term; but it is clear that a lot of things have gone on that are bound to disillusion anybody."

Ruckelshaus has left open the possibility of challenging his home state senator, Democrat Vance Hartke, in 1976. Ruckelshaus lost a 1968 bid to unseat Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

Train said he was for "strong, vigorous and fair enforcement of environmental policies." The President agrees with this, he said.

Committee OKs Colby

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee Thursday approved the nomination of William E. Colby to be director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The action was by voice vote, with Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, voting against Colby.

Hughes reserved the right to change his vote and support confirmation on the Senate floor after reading the full record, including answers to written questions.

Colby's nomination was opposed at a public hearing July 20 by Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass. He accused Colby of responsibility for "sweeping injustices" to political opponents of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu as head of the "Phoenix" pacification program aimed at the eradication of Viet Cong subversives from 1968 to 1971.

Compromise Is Reached On Wage Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate-House conferees reached agreement Thursday on a bill raising the minimum wage to $2.20 an hour and extending coverage to about eight million workers.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., noting earlier Republican talk of a veto, said he hopes the conference has worked out a bill President Nixon will sign.

Ehrlichman Won't Talk About Plumbers' Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman told the Senate Watergate committee Thursday that there was another White House "plumbers" unit investigation that cannot be made public.

Ehrlichman said revealing the activity would compromise national security.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., noted that a memorandum in evidence before the committee had one paragraph left blank and asked Ehrlichman if he could provide it.

"I'd probably be violating two or three statutes if I provided this," Ehrlichman said. He added it involved a 1971 investigation no way related to the Watergate affair.

The known activity of a special White House investigative unit known as the plumbers includes the break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office, investigations into leaks concerning the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, and a probe into publication of White House discussions about Soviet-Indian relations.

Ehrlichman's lawyer, John J. Wilson, produced a recent letter from White House special counsel J. Fred Buzhardt "directing us to claim executive privilege (on a matter) identified only as a fourth instance of the activities of the plumbers."

Ehrlichman said he would tell the senators about it in closed session if the White House approves.

Baker said the committee is left in an untenable position and "we've got to press this further in connection with the tapes, the documents, the May 22 statement, a dozen other things I could name. We have to know what was taken into account to validate the claim of national security which is in some quarters suspect."

Wilson, referring to "colossal" leaks out of the committee, said he would ask White House permission for closed-session testimony if "we could assure the word we give you will not go out of the meeting."

Ehrlichman had intimated Tuesday that other activites of the plumbers had not come to light, but this was the first specific exploration.

Ehrlichman testified that former Nixon campaign treasurer Hugh W. Sloan Jr. came to him in July last year to discuss his fears of possible White House involvement in the Watergate break-in the month before.

"I don't know what Sloan wanted to tell me," Ehrlichman said.

Sloan had testified June 6 that Ehrlichman seemed to interpret his conversation as personal fear and that the White House aide said, " 'Don't tell me any of the details, I don't want to know.' My position would have to be until after the election that I would have to take executive privilege."

He also said Nixon "turned the FBI loose" on Watergate for the most extensive investigation since the probe into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963 after assurance that Central Intelligence Agency activities would not be compromised.

The White House then got a report that only the seven men indicted and later convicted were involved, Ehrlichman said.

"They didn't find out much, did they?" asked Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C.

Ehrlichman also spoke of Nixon's refusal to turn over tape recordings and documents bearing on the Watergate scandal.

"Were I sitting in the White House," Ehrlichman told the Senate Watergate committee, "my instinctive reaction would be to preserve the institution of the presidency intact." The decision, he said, must be Nixon's.

On other matters, Ehrlichman testified:

—He never heard of a "political enemies list" while he was in the White House.

—He knows of no instance where the White House staff received a citizen's individual income tax return, although Internal Revenue Service figures show that 915 "tax checks" were sought by the White House in 1972 alone.

—That former acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray III was being investigated for nearly two weeks before his resignation was forced by public disclosure that he had destroyed documents taken from the safe of E. Howard Hunt, a Watergate conspirator.

—That the "plumbers" unit investigation of Daniel Ellsberg, which resulted in the burglary of his psychiatrist's office, was made to satisfy Nixon's demand that leaks like the Pentagon Papers be plugged.

Ehrlichman, whose testimony has been frequently at odds with that of ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III, said he heard of the enemies list only after Dean revealed its existence to the committee.

Dean had said tax audits and FBI investigations were sought against some persons on the list to harass them.

When Ehrlichman denied any tax returns were sought by the White House, Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., quoted IRS statistics about the 'tax checks' that were made.
mixing apples and oranges, that a tax check is only a query to the IRS as to whether an individual has tax troubles pending. He said the White House cannot obtain actual returns.

The checks, he said, were made in connection with pending appointments because "obviously you don't want to appoint an assistant secretary who is going to have tax problems the next day . . . it doesn't mean culling through returns to find out what deductions or sources of income might be."

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., took Ehrlichman again through the Sept. 3, 1971, burglary of the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Weicker also recalled Ehrlichman's testimony that on June 28, 1972—11 days after the Watergate break-in—he gave Gray two packages of documents.

"On the same day you cancelled a meeting with Gray because of leaks and then turned around and gave him documents so they would not be leaked. Which is it?" Weicker asked.

Ehrlichman said the problem with leaks was not with Gray, but with someone else highly placed in the FBI.

Weicker referred to Ehrlichman's testimony that last April 15 Gray had told him he had destroyed the Hunt papers, which included forged State Department cables considered "politically sensitive."

Gray resigned April 27, after Weicker—who had learned of the papers episode from his friend Gray the day before—made that information public.

AP

Dr. Daniel Ellsberg

Los Angeles (UPI) — Dr Daniel Ellsberg said Thursday that John Ehrlichman had made "false and slanderous" allegations in suggesting that Ellsberg might have given the Pentagon Papers to the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

Ellsberg pointed out that no such charges had been made against him in two years of government investigation and prosecution.

Ellsberg said he doubted very much if the papers were turned over to the Soviets and that if they were he did not know who had done so.

"I certainly did not," he said.

The Pentagon Papers trial defendant charged that Ehrlichman's motive in making such "deceitful" allegations was to protect himself and others in the White House from possible criminal charges in the burglary of Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

Ellsberg, whose espionage-conspiracy-theft case was thrown out of court May 11 by Judge Matt Byrne on grounds of government misconduct, called a news conference to rebut Ehrlichman's testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee.

Asked if he planned to take court action against Ehrlichman, Ellsberg said his attorney had advised him it would probably be futile.

Ehrlichman has testified before the committee that at the time the Pentagon Papers first appeared in the New York Times June 13, 1971, the White House had information that another set had been turned over to the Russian Embassy.

"It is false and slanderous to suggest that I or anyone associated with me ever gave such information to the Soviet Union," he said. "There is nothing I could resent more."

Ellsberg said that if the Justice Department had a shred of evidence to back up that charge it certainly would have been included in the indictment instead of charges that the top secret documents were turned over to newspapers.

'No Need'

"The Soviets had no need for the papers," he said. "They could get them for 10 cents a day by buying the New York Times."

Ellsberg also denied Ehrlichman's testimony that former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover had been reluctant to investigate fully the Pentagon Papers case because of his personal friendship with Louis Marx Sr., Ellsberg's father-in-law.

Marx met Hoover only once 30 years ago, and had never seen him since that time or ever talked with him on the telephone although Marx was a great admirer of the FBI head, Ellsberg said.

"The fact is that a few days after the Pentagon Papers appeared in the New York Times the FBI talked with Mr. Marx," Ellsberg said. "He was cooperative but told them he knew nothing about the matter, which was true."

Relatives Quizzed

Ellsberg said FBI agents also interviewed his wife's two sisters, her brother, a cousin and her stepmother. He said the FBI conducted well over 1,000 interviews in all and came up only with the conclusion that Ellsberg acted "out of patriotic motives which the White House wasn't willing to accept."

Ehrlichman had justified the break-in of the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist, on grounds that President Nixon and the White House had reason to believe that national security was imperiled.

"It is my belief that Ehrlichman brought up these allegations about the Soviet Embassy to defend himself and others against possible criminal charges resulting from the illegal actions taken," he said.

Judge Byrne Denies Allegations

©The New York Times

Los Angeles — Judge Matthew Byrne Jr., who dismissed the Pentagon Papers trial, has issued a denial of allegations made by former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman that he had shown "strong interest" in the post of FBI director while the trial of Daniel J. Ellsberg was in progress.

Without referring directly to Ehrlichman's testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee, Byrne said: "Recent public statements about the meeting on April 5, 1973, to which I was summoned to the Western White House require clarification."

The judge said in a statement from San Francisco, where he is attending a judicial meeting, that the San Clemente meeting followed an April 4 telephone call from Ehrlichman requesting him to come to San Clemente to discuss a matter which the White House aide said was "in no way connected with the case on trial," but which was not specified.

According to Byrne's statement, "after learning in San Clemente on April 5 that the meeting's purpose involved consideration of my becoming director of the FBI, my initial reaction was that I could not consider such a proposal at that time but would reflect upon the matter.

"On April 7, I called and met with Mr. Ehrlichman at a place of his choosing so that I could deliver on a face-to-face basis, which I felt was owed to the president's representative, my decision after reflection. That decision confirmed my initial reaction rejecting consideration of any such proposal while the trial was in progress."

The statement was the first acknowledgement by Byrne that he had initiated the second meeting which took place at a park in Santa Monica. He had said from the bench at the trial this spring that in two conversations with Ehrlichman during the trial, he had refused to discuss any future job in the government.

Ehrlichman's testimony differs with that of the judge's statement in several ways. First, the content of the telephone call April 4, according to Ehrlichman, was specified: "to discuss a federal appointment which is not judicial in character."

Second, at the initial meeting in San Clemente Ehrlichman said: "The judge indicated a strong interest. He told me a number of his experiences with the FBI . . ." Ehrlichman testified that Byrne had left him with an impression that he had a "very clear interest" in the FBI post.

And, at the second meeting April 7 in Santa Monica, Ehrlichman said he and Byrne took a short walk in the park and the judge again showed "a very strong interest" in the FBI post but had not pressed for an offer.

Kelley Defends Hoover's Capability

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover was "entirely capable" of running the FBI until he died in office at the age of 77, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said Thursday.

Kelley, sworn in as Hoover's successor three weeks ago, disagreed with John D. Ehrlichman's testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee that Hoover's stubbornness impeded investigations.

"Mr. Ehrlichman has the right to speak as he might," Kelley said in response to questions at a news conference.

"My personal reaction is that, having been associated with Mr. Hoover as an agent, an agent in charge, and later as chief of police. . . , he was entirely capable of discharging his duties, very lucid in his discussion and I was most satisfied with his performance," he continued.

Kelley was referring to his 21 years as an FBI agent under Hoover and his work later as Kansas City, Mo., police chief.

Former presidential adviser Ehrlichman testified Wednesday that President Nixon should have fired Hoover early in his administration because Hoover "was certainly fixed in his views and it made operations very, very difficult."

Ehrlichman said the White House formed the investigating unit known as the plumbers in response to Hoover's failure to investigate the leaking of the Pentagon Papers.

Asked his opinion of the plumbers, he replied, "I cannot respond to that because I don't know the structure. The FBI has its jurisdiction clearly defined. Any other organization which may go into the same field is, of course, something that has been allegedly done."

Kelley acknowledged that he took office facing lowered morale in the FBI but said "the problem of morale has been considerably dissipated as the result of the establishment of a permanent director."

Anyway, he said, the problem was never as severe as it had been portrayed.

The occasion for the news conference was Kelley's announcement that he has appointed Nicholas P. Callahan, a career FBI employe, as associate director.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

As we understand their position, Lincoln home-builders have said they want the same standards in certain new construction that apply to mobile homes. This does not mean that the Lincoln home-building industry intends to place copies of mobile homes on lots all over the city.

The Lincoln home-building industry, if it gets what it wants, will continue to build conventional housing just as it has in the past and the present building codes will not be altered. But it does want the right to embark upon the development of non-permanent homes in the manner of mobile home courts.

It wants to be able to develop an area with movable homes with construction requirements no greater nor less than those that apply to mobile homes. Further, it wants these homes classed as personal property, as mobile homes now are.

Other arguments exist in regards to the city's proposed new mobile home ordinance but this approach by Lincoln builders is the most intriguing part of the current discussion on the subject. It injects into local housing a totally new dimension.

And it has the potential for Lincoln and its builders of a totally new industry. The Lincoln builders would, in effect, build a mobile home without wheels — one that could be moved, for instance, on a flatbed truck.

The economic potential of this is rather obvious. It would simply give to Lincoln builders an opportunity to compete in what has been a rapidly growing industry. Such homes have not only a local market but an expanding market in the area of recreation homes or cabins.

There is another point to consider in this. Lincoln builders would also offer competition to the mobile home industry and that, quite frankly, might be a real asset. Despite all the past talk, mobile home courts have not developed with nearly the eye appeal of more conventional type housing areas.

Such courts have a dull impact and remain a basic liability upon the area in which they are located. With a little design effort and a bit more money, it would be reasonable to expect that far more attractive non-permanent type housing could be provided.

But local builders cannot compete financially with mobile homes when they are saddled with stringent local building codes. Given the same requirements that apply to mobile homes and the same legal status, they can compete.

The proposal is a serious one by the builders and deserves serious consideration by the City Council.

The home construction industry has long taken it on the chin for its lack of success in providing a meaningful answer to low-cost housing needs. Now the industry in Lincoln has made a proposal that may allow it to reverse the pattern of past failure.

The proposal, it should be remembered, contains no call for government subsidies of any kind, only a change in government rules and regulations. Non-permanent housing is an old concept but one which has had little updating since its inception.

The home-builders' proposal may present a variety of problems to the city but the idea appears to have a lot of practicality to recommend it. Nor does there appear to be any valid reason for the proposal to merit the opposition of the mobile home industry.

If Lincoln wants to try something new, the home-builders have presented just such an opportunity.

You Cannot Stay Jung For Always

NEW YORK — Afraid of growing old?

If the answer is yes, according to the late psychoanalyst, Carl Jung, you are not really "living" now. Only existing. Unhappy with that existence.

Jung said that a person's fear of old age rises "in exact relationship to his unhappiness in the present." If a man or woman is contented with what he is doing at a given point of time, then he is satisfied with his today and assumes that the future will be an extension of that satisfaction.

If he is not satisfied with what he is doing, he foresees the future as an extension of the present. Hence, he dreads it.

Unfortunately, a majority of older Americans are not satisfied with what they are now doing — though there has been a refreshing but small trend in recent months for people to change life-style abruptly, even in middle age.

The advertising executive still makes plenty of money, but wishes he were a free-lance writer. The bank teller yearns to be an artist. A salesman wishes he had the brains to be the president of the company, and the president of the company wishes he had the guts to give it all up and become a college professor.

For most people who find their lives unfulfilling, there is a refusal to admit that they have ambitions to catch the boat they somehow missed, early in life. The reason is simple and, in many ways, psychologically imperative: You don't give up a dull but effective means of survival to venture into an exciting unknown in which you may submerge. The fear of change, which may result in disaster, is greater than the hatred of a known vacuum.

So millions of middle-aged Americans who have been pressured — by families, society or economics — into careers that frustrate, bore or defeat them, continue to mush along.

Hating now. Fearing old age.

Fortunately for today's under-30 generation, they don't suffer such hangups. The much-denigrated, socalled "permissive era" has resulted in a crop of children relatively oblivious to the values of financial success.

For them, personal pleasure is more to the point. These are the young who have made "the pursuit of happiness" an emotional, psychological, physical — and ongoing — experience. "Happiness" is an elusive, if not indefinable, quality of life — as much for the young as for the middle-aged — but even its pursuit, let's face it, is more pleasurable than the pursuit of financial security.

Big business corporations are reporting that intelligent college graduates today are increasingly interested in "enriching" jobs in amiable environments. Salary requirements fall into categories of lesser importance.

If America is to remain a booming capitalist economy, the pendulum perhaps had better swing back to the old profit-success-status philosophy.

Hoarders Not Helpers

Hopefully, those in the retail meat business are right when they say they don't think people are really hoarding meat products. They tend to think there is simply a little more buying than usual due to the efforts of people to make sure they have some meat on hand.

It is one thing to buy three chickens when you might otherwise buy one or to purchase two roasts when you might ordinarily have bought only one but it is something else to buy up large quantities of meat and poultry to beat a future price hike or shortage. To buy for a week in advance is one thing but to buy for two or three months is another.

While we hope the meat retailers are right, it does seem as though a lot of people are buying a lot more than usual. One sign of this is the big upsurge in the sale of home freezers, one retailer reporting more sales in a single day than he usually makes in a week and all of them reporting a phenomenal rise in sales.

For one thing, hoarding is not fundamentally a thing of much principle. It is an effort to protect your own interests regardless of others and probably at the expense of others and that is not exactly a laudable human value.

The hoarder is the kind of character who doesn't give a hoot about others and the world can do without those kind of people.

Additionally, hoarding exerts an abnormal and unnatural pressure on the market place. Hoarding only makes worse whatever it was that encouraged the practice to begin with. If there is a shortage or a rising price situation, hoarding only tends to aggravate things.

And in the long-run, what is it going to save you? Are the few bucks you might save by hoarding or the extra portion of beef you might enjoy here and there worth what the practice does and stands for? A sensible effort to keep home grocery supplies up is not out of line but we hope there are not very many among us who are going to extremes in expanding the family larder.

As so often is the case, the resulting hardships of hoarding fall most heavily on those least able to bear the burden. Those who finally must go without or pay extravagantly for what they get are the poor who have no choice but to live day to day rather than acting now to protect tomorrow.

Stifling 'Politics As Usual'

Eugene Leahy has said he might consider running for governor of Nebraska in 1978, only deceptively a long time away.

Some point out — Perhaps accurately — that as mayor of Omaha, Leahy never tackled his city's intrinsic social problems. Yet he was a people's mayor, serving and loved by Omaha's heavily predominating white middle-class. His record there shows he ran a clean, genuinely fun administration, launched the immense Missouri riverfront project, did his job right, imposed one term on himself, and left.

Now president of the Riverfront Communities Development Foundation, Leahy says he wants to achieve a never-before-accomplished cooperation by communities in the massive regional project. That commitment, he says, will keep him out of politics at least until 1978. If his success helps him into political office, he says okay, but that's not his motive.

"This country may very well be ready for somebody who can deliver," he said, calling not for miracles but honesty in politics. The Democrat proposed some reasoned methods to improve state government; they would impel the kind of growth the state must decide if it wants, and what kind of governor can do it.

One former state senator reportedly was defeated in her bid for re-election a few years back because she was too good, too competent. Now, with many of us "tiring" of the Watergate scandal, it points up not that we want to ignore it, but that again we finally recognize the need for goodness and competence in politics.

That equates Leahy's record. We believe he would bring courage and honesty to the governor's office, should he decide to seek it. In any case, we believe that such attributes — stifled too long by "politics as usual" — will stand firm as what we must require in government.

ANTHONY LEWIS

Law And The President

LONDON — President Nixon's argument against letting the Watergate investigators hear his secret tapes rests, in the end, on the premise that the President must decide on his own where the public interest lies. He has played the tapes and given his judgment. His direction must be absolute.

It is a familiar vision in this White House: A presidency free of all the entangling constraints of law, free of the need for accommodation with Congress. Such a view of presidential power informed Nixon's conduct of the war in Vietnam and its extension into Cambodia. Such a view underlay the Watergate crimes.

There it was in John Ehrlichman's testimony, the same assumption of presidential hegemony. He saw nothing "embarrassing" about White House agents breaking into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, he said, because presidents have inherent power to do that. And he said Nixon agreed: "He considered it to be well within the constitutional obligation and function of the presidency."

It is so easy to slide from an asserted national security need to a claim of absolute presidential power to meet it. There is a glimpse of that thought process just now in an unlikely place: "First Monday," a monthly journal published by the Republican National Committee.

The July issue contains a defense of the secret internal security plan adopted by President Nixon in 1970, then rescinded five days later because of J. Edgar Hoover's objections. That was the plan for wiretapping, bugging, burglary, opening of citizens mail and other surveillance. Nixon approved it despite advice that it included "clearly illegal" measures.

The defense in "First Monday" consists largely of an extended argument that there was in fact a genuine threat to internal security in 1970. The paper quotes various authorities on the extensive political violence across the United States between 1968 and 1970, especially on campuses. The implied conclusion is that this entitled the President to do what he did.

One may agree that campus and other political violence in that period was extremely serious. I do. But it does not follow that the President was therefore justified in acting on his own, in secret, in disregard of Congress. In the setting of American constitutionalism, it would be hard indeed to think of a greater non-sequitur. For the Constitution entrusts the law-making power to Congress — "in both good and bad times," as Justice Hugo Black once wrote.

One way to test the legitimacy of the 1970 Nixon security plan in terms of democratic theory is to try to imagine what might have happened if the President then had put to Congress the case for emergency police measures. Would legislation authorizing burglary and eavesdropping in the sole discretion of the executive have passed? Hardly.

There was strong concern in Congress then about revolutionary bombings and violent demonstrations. But There was also concern about official lawlessness — about the invasion of Cambodia, for example, and the Kent State murders that federal and state authorities did not prosecute. And there would have been the deepest resistance to the creation of a secret police apparatus in the United States.

In short, whatever legislation Congress enacted would have been a compromise of conflicting interests. That is the way democracy works: slowly, perhaps frustratingly, but more safely than systems of concentrated power.

All that is obvious enough. What is extraordinary is that it should be overlooked by men who call themselves conservatives. For it is the conservatives in modern American history who have opposed concentration of power, especially in the presidency.

The great legal battle was fought against a liberal Democratic president — Harry Truman, when he seized the country's steel mills to prevent a strike in 1952. The Supreme Court found that he had tried to exercise a power confided to Congress, the power to legislate.

"Absence of authority in the president to deal with a crisis," Justice Frankfurter wrote, "does not imply want of power in the government. Conversely the fact that power exists in the government does not vest it in the president. The need for new legislation does not enact it.".

The Ehrlichman testimony and the President's refusal to disclose the tapes, taken together, suggest that there has been a basic decision in the White House to concede nothing — to stand on the theory of unlimited presidential power. The constitutional answer that will come from the courts in due course is foreshadowed by the steel case: presidents, too, are bound by the law.

Notes From The Road

I'm not really sure the kids appreciated the break, but it sure felt good to get out on the road again and see some of the country.

The reason I think the kids could've had nearly as much fun at home is because they didn't bother to pay much attention to what was new around them while we were away.

Oh, they made new friends here and there along the way — friends they'll no doubt never see again, but who were bosom buddies within minutes after the escape from the car and its confinement.

The most fun on the trip, which took us to the Big Horns, Yellowstone, the Tetons and Flathead Lake, were the toys we took along for them and the two new books they got to buy, special, for their "vacation."

While we were busy trying to get them to look at the scenery around us, they were busy reading, or playing cowboys, or asking for another cookie.

When Don Walton dropped by the other night to hear about our travels, it was Stefan, 3, who supplied the details — some of which he embellished a bit as he went along.

The highlight of Stefan's trip, aside from the few days of camping, was his stay at Grammy Donna's in North Platte the week before the vacation began.

When friend Don asked if he saw any animals, Stefan ignored the deer, antelope, elk and moose and, true to his cowboy nature, mentioned we'd seen a lot of cows.

"How many were there?" asked Don.

"Three," was the reply.

Then he decided cowboys were roping the herd of three cows. He also tossed in a comment about eagles, something none of the rest of us could remember.

Finally, tired of the whole thing, Stefan looked at me: "Daddy, you tell the rest of the vacation."

Actually, we had seen cows on the road (though no cowboys), meandering their way across the ribbon of asphalt through those mountain meadows that make the Big Horns a worthwhile stop on any trip in that direction.

There, we also waited for a herd of sheep to get across the manmade division between this half of the meadow and that, and we caught a glimpse of an elk which had wandered down from the hills to graze.

Later, in Yellowstone, we were to see herds of elk dotting the hills on an early morning, leisurely awaking from a night's rest as we had done many a day ourselves.

In Yellowstone, we were also to see our share of moose, one lonely bull bison and pelicans (yes, pelicans) — but no bears, which, we learned, had been hauled back into the high country away from the tourists now fined for feeding them.

South of Yellowstone, we were to see more moose, grazing against the backdrop of the majestic Tetons, which shoot straight up from the valley floor, the result of eons of shifts in the earth's crust.

North of Yellowstone, after we'd left the park, we were back in man's world, where the elk were crowded behind high fences.

Inside the parks, though, we saw less litter than we'd seen on other trips, and more evidence that someone is trying hard to protect those great showplaces of God's handiwork.

At Old Faithful, where hundreds crowd around every hour or so to watch the famous geyser spout off, the kids and I had one of those experiences I'll remember for a while.

Stefan and Adam, 5, were wearing their overalls that day. I was carrying a camera, a half-finished can of cola, a couple of rocks and a jacket or two.

Both boys had to go to the bathroom, so in we went, and I balanced my armload as I worked to unbuckle overalls and get them about their business.

Then I waited. One wanted me to hold his cowboy hat, too; another didn't have any paper in his booth. Other men came in and went out. It seemed like hours. Finally, we all emerged.

"Many men would envy you your sons," their mother advised from her place outside after the long wait.

"Why didn't we have daughters?" I asked.

We had many comments again this year about our method of keeping track of the kids by tying ropes to them and us. While other parents ran to keep 'hold of little hands, we casually strolled about, unfearful of cliffs or boiling hot springs.

We were less comfortable about other aspects of our trip.

In Montana, the big sky of the Big Sky Country is still too much filled with the smoke of burning sawdust from the lumber mills.

In Wyoming, for 50 miles we drove through the fallout from a huge coal-burning power plant and we could see, hidden away in the hills, the scars from strip mining coal dredged from huge furrows laid open for their bounty and never closed again.

We joked for days about the woman, lunching at the next table at Jackson Lodge, describing with genuine astonishment the life of campers she had seen, as she waited for her bus to take her back to her New Jersey country club.

And finally, we came back, tanned and rested, to the wet skies of Nebraska.

Big Secret

Lincoln, Neb.

The mind comprehends the laws of logic and the universe. It obeys these laws, is a part of these laws, thus is a part of universal intelligence.

Each individual mind is an important part of the whole intelligence but neither adds nor subtracts from it. The soul, being immaterial, may be multiplied an infinite number of times without subtracting from the whole or adding to the whole. However, knowledge may fluctuate. God can share his intelligence with us without costing Him anything. It is a free gift.

Each individual should have the capacity to be Christ-like if he only obeyed all the laws of the universe. It should be natural for him. Individuals must group together to protect themselves from other groups. Most problems are man-made.

We can store and pile up knowledge but not intellect, for the devil is alive. This inability of man is for his own protection and is God's big secret. He keeps it from the devil.

Public Service

Omaha, Neb.

President Nixon has advised the Senate to "wallow in Watergate." His one-time aides have faced and now are facing the doubts of the public as to morality in government. One such person is modish, chastined Gordon Strachan.

To Senator Montoya's question as to whether young men should pursue government service, this second-rater answered brokenly that he would not encourage these aspirations.

I re-echo his statement with the qualification: "Only if you can learn to say no." Public service is not easy, whether one works behind the lines in political combat or in the glare of the spotlight. It calls for men and women, not weak-nosed compliance with whatever your political god may be. All of us should bear in mind the words of Edmund Burke: "Government is a contrivance of human wisdom to provide for human wants."

But the election of 1972 mocked the wisdom of Disraeli with whom Mr. Nixon mistakenly identifies himself: "The greatest of all evils is a weak government."

I commend these two writers for their interesting reports on the accomplishments of these young people. The youngsters' knowledge and ability displayed is truly remarkable at ages 10-19. It's sincerely enjoyable and refreshing to read about the good things our youth are doing.

Wrong Dirt Pile

Lincoln Neb.

Millions seek the truth but this will be a long time coming because "Get Nixon" headlines and the publicity-prone actors in this drama of comedy have already relegated to obscurity (only temporarily, it is hoped) the purpose of that truth.

It is possible that the Watergate break-in was not really a bungled affair but rather a well-planned, expertly executed robbery of failure. It is possible that perjury is being committed before the committee. It is possible that some documents presented as substantiating evidence were conceived and written after the fact. It is possible that a small number of people can come together for a single purpose and dedicate their lives to that purpose. It is possible that this group can dupe a man or many men (Castro did this to the U. S. government and the Cuban people) for a very long time.

There are so many "possibles" that it strains the imagination. Dogmatism does not reveal facts nor solve a problem.

By all means, keep the Watergate investigating committee alive and working. It is suggested, however, that the members take a long shower for they have been digging in the wrong dirt pile.

To be accused by a dogmatist is to be exonerated.

Dumped Garbage

Lincoln, Neb.

I would like to "thank" the woman who at 6:50 Tuesday morning dumped my garbage in my yard so that she might have my garbage receptacle. I can't tell her how much I appreciate it. I think the garbage people also feel this way, as they don't have to pick up the garbage as long as it's strung all over the yard.

My daughters couldn't believe that some grown-up would do such a thing. Well, I set my daughters straight on one thing — the intelligence it took to do this "good deed" couldn't have been that of an adult.

Colin May Hold Key On Pay Raise Issue

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Whether Lancaster county employes will get the salary increases proposed by their respective department heads or a flat cost-of-living increase apparently depends on the decision of Board Chairman Robert Colin.

With the opposing views clearly expressed by the other two commissioners during a meeting of the board Thursday with all department heads, Colin indicated he wanted some time to think about the matter, but promised a decision Friday.

Commissioner Jan Gauger, who has strongly supported a personnel study, told the department heads that she was suggesting that the county board ask the officials to revise the requests to a straight 6.5% cost-of-living raise for all county employes until completion of the personnel study and implementation of a personnel system.

Approval Urged

However, Commissioner Kenneth Bourne said he feels that the salary increases proposed by department heads should be approved this year and that no change in procedure be made until after the personnel system is actually set up.

Questioning the need for spending a possible $40,000 proposed for the study, Election Commissioner Bill Davidson said he would think the county could figure out a way to adapt one of the personnel systems used by either the state, city or university rather than having another study to "tell us the information that is available right here."

"It seems inconceiveable to me why you don't have a study to study doing away with studies," he said.

Referring to Mrs. Gauger's affiliation with the League of Women Voters, Davidson said:

"Mrs. Gauger comes from a well-trained group of people that like studies. They will have you study until you study yourself out of it."

Douglas Replies

In response to a comment from Mrs. Gauger that the requested increases varied from 4.5% to 12 to 14%, County Atty. Paul Douglas said that variance in percentage is not necessarily an indication of inequity.

He pointed out that one office may be shifting its work load or there may have been changes in personnel which result in a variance of, for example, 4.5% in one office to 7.1% in another office.

He said he had spent about two hours with the board presenting comparisons of the salaries of his deputies with those of attorneys in the attorney general's office and the City Attorney's office as well as with other practicing lawyers.

"When you bring in this big study, you're going to repeat what I've done and take more of my time," he said.

Douglas said that the county officials had met Wednesday and were indicating to the board that "when you get this (personnel system) ready we're willing to cooperate in putting it into effect."

Flat Percentage Opposed

However, he said they were opposing the flat percentage increase now and rejection of the recommendations of the individual office holders.

No response was given to his question as to "why the board is not willing to review the budgets" and take one year to have the study and then make the changes according to the classification.

Assessor Fritz Meyer, indicating he was not in favor of the personnel system but would go along with the other county officials who have indicated their support, said that denying the employes the increases asked by the office heads "may hasten the employes' unionizing," which is a possibility.

He said he felt the county officials had done a good job trying to get their employes in line salary-wise with comparable jobs.

Meyer said as he understood the law, the county board merely approves the budget for a department and the official can pay the employes what he chooses within the limits of the budget.

Mrs. Gauger Agrees

In response, Mrs. Gauger agreed that all the board could do is suggest what the department heads do.

Pointing out that perhaps the officials had been at fault in not getting their employes up to the levels they should be in the past, Douglas said he favored the setting up of a personnel system but contended the board "is not doing it fairly by giving people these 6.5% raises now."

Challenging the time element involved for the study, Douglas said that he knew Mrs. Gauger had been working on trying to find out about available federal funding for the study since February and "you haven't even a commitment after six months."

In view of that "you know what the next six months will be," he said.

Mrs. Gauger, contending that the reason nothing more had been accomplished since February was because there was no appropriation for personnel in the 1972-73 budget. She was confident the study, slated to begin in September, would take no longer than three to six months as promised by officials of the regional office of the U.S. Civil Service Division in St. Louis.

NLRB Official Accuses Union Of Unfairness

Omaha (AP) — The regional director of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) has issued a complaint accusing a printers union and several of its members of unfair labor practices.

Local 190 of the International Typographical Union has picketed the Omaha World-Herald since May 5, the day after most union printers left their jobs.

The case will be heard by an NLRB administrative law judge Aug. 20.

The complaint said that by the alleged actions the union restrained and coerced company employes and thereby was engaging in unfair labor practices.

The union has also charged the World-Herald with unfair labor practices. An NLRB investigator is checking into the charges.

Sertomans Told About 'Rivergate'

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Eugene Leahy brought his enthusiasm, dreams and hunor to the Downtown Lincoln Sertoma Club Thursday.

Speaking on the Missouri River waterfront development, which the former Omaha Mayor once referred to as "Rivergate," Leahy said that "anything this big is bound to have problems."

At the same time, he said, the Riverfront Development Corporation is "way ahead of where we thought we would be two years ago."

Leahy said the project now has a paid staff and $1 million in federal funds for planning. Next year, he said, that budget will probably grow to $3 million in federal funds.

One of the accomplishments that Leahy pointed to was development of a 255-acre industrial park northwest of Eppley Airfield.

In addition, Leahy said, a condomimium and a 500-boat marina are going to be built in the Omaha-Council Bluffs area.

Leahy also talked about the possibility of establishing a "free trade zone," apparently in the industrial park, as part of the waterfront development.

Leahy said that if the U.S. Department of Commerce will give approval of establishing the zone, customs costs would be reduced.

In addition, Leahy said, "subzones" could be established in locations like Lincoln or Norfolk.

"The more we study it the more enthused we become," Leahy said.

"The Japanese have $18 billion just sitting over there waiting to be invested," Leahy said. "Labor costs (in Japan) are up 40% over the last two years and Japan is losing their market for televisions and cameras."

"The idea behind the concept of new federalism is to be original," Leahy said. He said a Housing and Urban Development official had recently told him that the "eyes of the nation" were on the project.

In addition, Leahy said, "The National Georgraphic" plans to do a story on the project, "putting a development, a dream in the hands of 40 million people."

"I want to be able to prove to the nation that it can be done if you just set aside your petty jealousies, your addiction to ego and your addiction to party labels," Leahy said.

Farm Bill Agreement Would Open U.S. Food Credit Sales

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate-House conferees on the farm bill tentatively agreed Thursday to make the Soviet Union, China and Cuba eligible for low-interest, long-term dollar credit sales pacts under the U.S. food-for-peace law.

The provision would apply to Communist nations except North Vietnam. And it would cover any other country currently eligible under the law's donation section that allows the United States to give food to aid underfed or disaster-stricken foreigners.

The law currently is more restrictive in defining country eligibility to participate in the sales program than in permitting donations and grants to meet humanitarian needs. The new provision is aimed at eliminating this distinction and placing dollar sales and donation eligibility on the same basis.

Backers said the provision would mean that restrictions on countries trading with North Vietnam and Cuba and other limitations would not prevent sales..

But the president would have to find that a sales agreement would be in the national interest and tell Congress the reasons for it.

The conferees tentatively approved, on Wednesday, a House-passed ban on sales or donations to North Vietnam under the food-for-peace law unless such aid is specifically authorized by Congress.

In another major step Thursday, the conferees gave preliminary approval to knocking out a Senate-passed ban on military use of foreign currency generated by the food-for-peace programs. Sen. Willian Proxmire, D-Wis., sponsor of the proposed ban, had said his provision would have cut off $162 million of such spending by Cambodia and South Vietnam.

The food-for-peace program has been responsible for agricultural exports valued at more than $20 billion in concessional sales and donations since the law was enacted in 1954. It currently operates at an export level of about $1 billion a year—well below peaks attained in the mid-1960s.

Pollution Effects Review To Eye Sports Centers?

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Within the next several months the Lincoln-Lancaster County Air Pollution Control Agency will probably be designated to review what effects the building of shopping centers, roads and sports complexes in the county will have on air quality.

The reason behind the new development, Gary Walsh, a staff member of the agency told the agency's advisory board, Thursday, is a court ruling that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) must promulgate regulations on emissions from "complex sources," such as shopping centers.

In order for a complex source to be built, Walsh said, the builder will apply for a permit and the air pollution control agency will decide whether emissions from autos drawn by the "complex source" would violate national air quality standards.

"I have no doubts that this (ruling) is going to cause a lot of controversy," Walsh said.

Regulations proposed for Nebraska by the State Department of Environmental Control would place into the "complex source" category all shopping centers with a capacity of over 700 vehicles and all airports regularly served by airlines.

Also in that category would be place roads carrying 700 vehicles in a one hour period or 1,1440 vehicles in an eight hour period, according to Walsh.

Brogden Responds

That information prompted Lincoln City Planner Doug Brogden to respond that "it would be a lot easier to give you the streets that don't carry that amount of traffic."

In an interview following the advisory board meeting, Walsh said his tentative opinion is that there will be "quite a few" approvals before a complex source would be turned down in Lincoln because the emissions it would create would violate national air quality standards.

Walsh also noted that the regulations will not apply to complex sources that already exist.

In other action the advisory board heard a report that all 12 incorporated towns in the county have agreed to join the city-county air pollution control program.

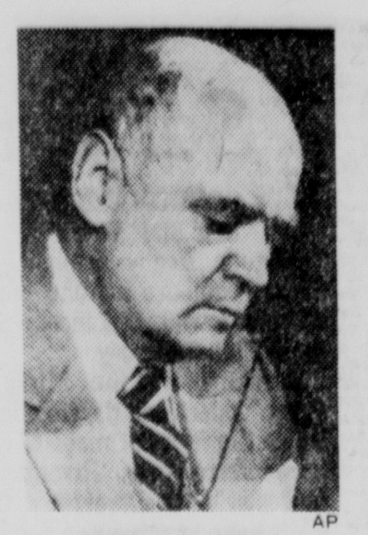
Board chairman Les Sanger said that the agreements figured in a greatly increased budget for the agency for fiscal 1973-74.

Ratio To Change

The ratio between federal and local funding for the agency will change from 50% federal 50% local to 60% federal 40% local, Sanger said.

The agency's proposed budget for 1973-74 is $114,509, including both local and federal funds. Last year's budget was $86,130.

The board also heard a report from staff member Otis Sunderman that 14 sources in Lancaster County whose emissions are in violation of air pollution regulations are all meeting schedules for compliance with the regulations.



William L. White

Publisher W. L. White, 73, Dies

Emporia, Kan. (UPI) — William L. White, editor and publisher of the Emporia Gazette, former foreign correspondent and the author of numerous books and magazine articles, died Thursday in an Emporia hospital where he was under treatment for cancer. He was 73.

White, the son of famed Emporia editor William Allen White, began his career in journalism as a reporter on the Gazette when he was only 14 years old. He served the newspaper in various capacities before becoming editor and publisher in 1944, when his father died.

The best known among White's numerous books included "Journey for Margaret," "They Were Expendable," and "Queens Die Proudly." He wrote separate books on the Russians, the Germans, and the Asians, the last in 1969.

Laird Says Council Ordered Secrecy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Thursday the National Security Council ordered a secrecy cloak thrown over American bombing raids in Cambodia in 1969-70.

Talking to newsmen at the White House, where he now serves as a counselor to President Nixon, Laird said he recommended the missions but that the secrecy order came from the council.

Therefore, B52s secretly carried out 3,630 raids over Cambodia between March 1969 and on May 1, 1970, when American troops entered that country.

Laird said that following a visit to South Vietnam early in 1969, he recommended bombing of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese sanctuaries in Cambodia because he regarded them as "enemy occupied territories."

At that time, he related, he already had received preliminary approval to plan for the gradual withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam. After conferring with Army Gen. Creighton Abrams, then the U.S. military commander in Vietnam, Laird said he felt bombings would promote the withdrawal program. "I believe those strikes were helpful . . . and did protect American personnel," he said.

The secrecy that surrounded the raids was attributed to diplomatic considerations because, as Laird put it, had they been publicly acknowledged the then-leader of Cambodia Prince Norodom Sihanouk would have been forced to demand that they be halted.

Last week, for the first time, the Pentagon publicly acknowledged the Cambodia raids.

Congress and the State Department disagree on whether various congressmen were informed of the raids in private in 1970. They agree, however, that official reports on bombing raids were falsified.

Bill Forbids Influencing Foreign Elections

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Thursday approved legislation, inspired by revelations of ITT's political activities in Chile, that would forbid any U.S. citizen or government agency to seek to influence the outcome of an election in a foreign country.

The bill, passed by voice vote and sent to the House, is a direct result of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee's hearings earlier this year into alleged efforts by the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT) to prevent the 1970 election of Marxist President Salvador Allende in Chile.

Testimony before the subcommittee indicated that ITT had offered the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) financial support for a plan to intervene in Chile at a time when the giant conglomerate feared that Allende, if he took office, would nationalize ITT interests there.

A Foreign Relations Committee report said the bill "prohibits any citizen or resident of the U.S. from offering a contribution to any agency or employe of the United States for the purpose of influencing the outcome of an election for public office in a foreign country.

"Further, it prohibits any officer, employe or agent of the United States from soliciting or accepting contributions to candidates or political parties to influence an election for public office in a foreign country."

The committee noted that former CIA director John McCone, now an ITT board member, testified at the hearings he had been approached several times at the CIA by private corporations with offers of financial assistance for CIA intervention in foreign elections.

Anti-Liddy Action Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Armed Services Committee Thursday voted 23 to 9 to postpone action on a move to have convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy cited for contempt of Congress.

Liddy, convicted in the break-in into Democratic National Committee headquarters, twice refused last Friday to be sworn to testify before an Armed Services subcommittee. The panel is conducting hearings on Central Intelligence Agency involvement in Watergate activities.

The full committee agreed to wait until its next meeting before voting on a motion by subcommittee Chairman Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., to start the process citing Liddy for contempt of Congress. No date for that meeting has been set.

Lincoln Volunteer Bureau To Become LCS Division

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Community Services (LCS) board of directors Thursday approved a bylaw change which will incorporate the Lincoln Volunteer Bureau, now a separate corporation, as a fourth division of LCS to supply services to member agencies.

The move was approved without dissent, although several board members at first questioned whether it was wise for LCS to move into a service area.

But LCS President Leo Beck and Executive Director John Goessman explained that the Volunteer Bureau's work is in fact in the category of technical services to agencies now, rather than supplying direct service to people.

Beck said the move, which he admitted was something of a departure, might be the precursor to centralization of other technical services to the smaller member agencies which benefit from United Fund dollars.

Speaking for the Volunteer Bureau, Bob Smith said the board had approved the move, which he said was conceived originally by Volunteer Bureau founders as the best organizational framework for a volunteer-coordination agency.

But Smith said that the organization of LCS, then divided into a Community Chest and Community Council, made a volunteer division as part of a central services agency impractical.

Smith said the Volunteer Bureau board, which he heads, hopes the creation of the new division might be seen as a one-year trial.

As one LCS division, the volunteer section will join agency relations, planning and United Fund as the three major subdivisions of LCS.

In other matters, the LCS board received the tentative 1974 budget report of the agency relations division, which reported it has given early approval to agency budgets totaling $1,101,756 plus $30,000 for new programs and emergencies.

Still waiting for final budget work are three agencies — the Malone Center, the Girl Scouts and the YMCA. If the figures used for those three thus far are eventually approved, the agency relations total recommended budget would be $1,285,975, a 7% increase from the current year.

The final budgets will not be approved until the LCS board has a chance to see the results of the United Fund campaign in the fall.

Sheriff Asks Help To Halt Pot Pickers

Lancaster County Sheriff Merle Karnopp Thursday appealed to the public for help in stopping the annual, illegal harvest of marijuana.

With this year's crop ripening, Karnopp suggested anyone who is suspeicious should call the sheriff's office with information.

Vehicles, particularly vans or pick-up trucks, parked along a county road with no occupants in sight are an indication that somebody is out picking the illegal weed, said the sheriff's office.

Medical Cost Payments Tightened Under Proposal

Payments for welfare recipient's medical expenses will be tightened up when a pair of new regulations proposed by the State Welfare Department become effective on Aug. 1.

One of the rule changes reduces the maximum hospital stay allowed from 90 days to 21 days, unless the state is told by the 14th day why hospital care must be extended beyond 21 days.

A welfare spokesman conceded that the change was prompted by some hospital stays that were regarded as excessively long — up to one year in one instance.

Noting that Iowa has a similar rule limiting hospital stays to 10 days, he termed the new rule "just a good business practice."

The department reported that the average length of stay for welfare patients is seven to eleven days and indicated that 5% of the welfare patients stay beyond 21 days.

The second regulation requires that the state pay a hospital a nursing home rate when a patient is held beyond the date scheduled for discharge without notification.

A public hearing on the rules was held Thursday; no one appeared to speak.

Newspaperman K. E. Sanders Dies In Sleep

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP)— Kenneth E. Sanders, 66, retired managing editor of the Sioux City Journal, died in his sleep Thursday after a long illness with cancer.

Sanders had been on the Journal news staff since 1948 and held the managing editor position from 1963 until his retirement last year. He was a past chairman of the Iowa Associated Press Managing Editors.

He was a staff member of The Associated Press from 1928 to 1947, except for Army service during World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Jane, and two brothers, Keith and Dean, publishers of the Creighton, Neb., News.

Gas Stations Told To Cut Prices Back

Omaha (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service Thursday reported that many Omaha service station operators have rolled back prices after IRS checks showed they were in violation of the price freeze.

The report followed an IRS investigation that began in June, it was reported.

The majority of the stations named in complaints were ordered to rollback prices, according to James W. Friel, economic stabilization manager for the IRS in Nebraska. Friel said he did not know exactly how many stations were involved.

Friel said his office received 250 complaints concerning freeze violations since June 14, with about 150 of those dealing with gasoline prices.

The price freeze ends Aug. 12. Until then, Friel said, gasoline prices generally are to be kept at the level they were between June 1 and June 8.

2 Groups Will Host Beatrice Air Race, Show

Beatrice (AP) — Two southeast Nebraska flying groups will sponsor a two-day event, including an air race and an air show, Aug. 25 and 26 at the Beatrice airport.

The Nebraska 99s, a women's pilot group, will sponsor the air race Aug. 25. The event will begin and end at the Beatrice airport and will cover a course of 200 to 300 miles.

On Aug. 26, the Flying Conestogas, a men's pilot organization, will sponsor a free breakfast for fly-in participants, followed by the air show.

From Dad To Daughter

Prince Phillip, the Duke of Edinburgh, is about to present his daughter, Princess Anne, with a rosette for finishing top scorer in the Rothmans Trophy Dressage Championships at the Empire Pool Wembley. The princess finished with a 99.00 mark but because her horse, Doublet, was not qualified Meade on Wayfarer II, with a score of 89.00.

Gas Supply Still Tight In Some Areas

Omaha, (AP) — Although some improvement is noted, gas supplies are still short in some areas of the Midwest, according to a report issued by the Cornhusker Motor Club.

Fuel shortages were spotty in Nebraska, but there were no critical shortages reported, the club said.

According to the report, some shortages were noted in northern Nebraska. Gas supplies were short along highways 20 and 275.

Some rationing was reported along Interstate 80 at Omaha, Grand Island, Kearney and North Platte.

Wheat harvest and an Interstate construction project were said to be causing a drain in fuel supplies in the Bridgeport-Sidney area.

The American Automobile Association said the gas situation in Denver was continuing to deteriorate. Colorado Springs, Pubelo and Boudler were experiencing similar shortages, but supplies in the mountains were reported as adequate.

The AAA said the situation in Kansas was serious but an improvement was expected now that the wheat harvest is finished.

The report said supplies are generally adequate in Iowa, the Dakotas and Wyoming.

Record Hop Is Scheduled

A record hop for teenagers will be held Saturday at the O St. Recreation Center from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Music for the event will be provided free of charge by Funky Music '73, a discotheque, sponsored by Tucker's Music Shop.

A music shop spokesman said if attendance and behavior are good, music will be provided for additional hops this summer.

Ex-Lincolnite Held In Kansas

Lincoln police said Thursday that a 43-year-old former Lincoln man is being held by the Haskell County Sheriff in Kansas in connection with thefts of riding equipment in Lincoln and Lancaster County.

The total value of the equipment is believed to be over $1,500. Police said some of the articles have been recovered after being sold to ranchers and farmers in Haskell County.

New York — The terminals in New York's Kennedy Airport are so plush these days it's hard to get the passengers to leave and get on the plane.

We drove out from hot New York for American's luxury noon flight, the jumbo 747 to San Francisco. The waiting rooms — one for each flight — are done in American blues and whites to complement the rich red carpeting.

"When we surveyed," said the American Airlines agent, "we found most people were bugged by waiting time. I suppose it's because he's on a real high — getting ready to get somewhere.

"Any waiting is getting to him. So you'd better let him wait with the greatest of ease. When you call his flight, he really hates to get up."

☆ ☆ ☆

In more rugged days of flying, airlines stacked you up any old way. The drafty frame corridor where we used to dismount at La Guardia. It was equaled only by the old Foreign Legion blockhouse that was the waiting room at Tangier.

London International was leftover barracks from World War II.

Now in a burst of glass-and-concrete energy, the airlines have created pleasure palaces.

I must say it's a long, long walk out to those big, big planes. But you walk in Olympian splendors.

We are flying first-class today. (Not often we get to put our heads in such heady atmosphere.)

The airlines have problems with this front section. It features more leg room and free drinks. (Plus status which is an important edge in an edgy world.) But it costs about a hundred sky-high dollars more.

The ticket lady said: "Since you are flying with family plan with two children, you might find it more reasonable than you think. Besides that you can go excursion on the 14-21 day plan which cuts it even more."

☆ ☆ ☆

Of course in the jet age, you have very little time to be first-class. Used to be we rode the plush for nine hours between San Francisco and New York. Now it's less than five.

By the time seat belts are off, cocktails are on the table.

The captain comes on the pipe with a few well-chosen words: "Ah, g'morning, ladies and gentlemen. Or I should say g'afternoon. Ah — it's still morning at our destination. Ah — San Francisco.

"Weather enroute is good. Ah — the weather outside is 60 degrees below zero." (Why is it always below zero outside? Such reports would only interest a polar bear.)

"Ah — have a good flight. If there is anything we can do to serve you, just ask the stewardess." Click.

☆ ☆ ☆

The flight supervisor — American carries a gent who just goes around asking if you're happy — said: "Would you like a table for lunch?"

He swung some center aisle chairs around. Put a table in the middle.

"When the movie starts, we'll take the table away and you can swivel your chairs back toward the screen."

There's a lounge upstairs. A piano bar in the back. Airplanes are made so you can add or subtract seats. On long overseas flights, it's something to consider.

A flight can go 325 seats or boost it to 384. Or more. This does not increase the number of bathrooms — 11 on the 747. And adding 50 or more people puts pressure on them.

The airlines put bottles of cologne and hand cream in them. My girl child used to cop them. I guess other girl children did too. And the airlines figured out a simple but tricky way to stop it.

They keep the cologne and hand cream bottles in the johns. But they take the tops off them. (Raise that vice-president's salary!)

NRD Law Is Ruled To Be Constitutional

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster District Judge Samuel Van Pelt Thursday held LB1357 — the natural resources district law — constitutional and dissolved the temporary injunction issued earlier.

In an action challenging the law on several constitutional questions, the court held that conservation of natural resources is an activity of the "greatest benefit to all citizens."

Judge Van Pelt held unconstitutional the provision of the law specifying certain persons as members of the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission by virtue of their state office position.

However, he said that this provision could be stricken from the legislation without affecting the remainder of the law.

In the order, the court stated that a "governor-elect" is not an office of the State of Nebraska nor an office holder of the state and held that the provision for an appointment by such person to be void.

This, also, according to Judge Van Pelt, may be stricken without affecting the remainder of the legislation.

The court further held that the authority in the law to assess an ad valorem tax upon the taxable property within the water resource district to be valid.

"It is of general public benefit to all taxpayers within the district and is valid even though some such taxpayers may have been previously taxed to pay for a project which may have been wholly or partially completed for similar purposes within the district prior to its creation," the court order stated.

The court further found that the Legislature set adequate guidelines, required that public hearings be held and that the public hearings were held in conformance with requirements and that the boundaries were properly established.

Judge Van Pelt held that the removal of a function of county government does not constitute a division of a county in violation of the Constitution.

In addition to lifting the temporary injunction, Judge Van Pelt dismissed the petition filed in the case by Richardson County Soil and Water Conservation District and the two area landowners, Walter Neeman and Frederick Behling.

Ruling For NRDs Timing 'Strategic'

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The executive secretary of the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission said Thursday that the court decision upholding the constitutionality of the Natural Resources Districts (NRDs) comes at a "strategic" time.

Dayle Williamson said the 24 NRDs are now holding budget hearings around the state and must have them completed by Aug. 15. The ruling, he said, will allow the districts to throw out the dual bookkeeping system which was instituted when a lawsuit was filed challenging the constitutionality of the law passed by the 1972 Legislature substituting the NRDs for the old Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

Judge Sam Van Pelt's ruling was a mixed blessing, he noted.

The decision knocked four men off the Natural Resources Commission by virtue of the fact they head other state agencies. The four men are: Dan Jones, director of water resources; Dean Elvin Frolik of the NU College of Agriculture; Vince Dreezen, director of conservation and surveying with NU; and Jack Adams, director of the Agricultural Extension Service.

Williamson said henceforth the four men will serve as advisors to the commission. The Natural Resource District Act planned such a re-organization for 1975; Williamson said the court ruling merely speeds it up.

The ruling should not pose an immediate probelm for the 14-man commission which meets Aug. 30, Williamson said. By law, eight members are sufficient for a quorum to carry on business.

Fireman Dies In Omaha From Inhaling Smoke

Omaha (AP) — Funeral services are pending for an Omaha fireman who died of "chemical pneumonia" Wednesday. He suffered smoke inhalation while fighting a fire in a vacant house June 20.

The fireman, Harold N. Cormany Jr., had been a member of the department for about five years.

He was the first Omaha fireman to die of injuries suffered duty since June 4, 1965.

Cormany suffered the smoke inhalation after cutting a hole in the roof to ventilate the smoke, officials said.

Officials Pleased By Decision

Lower Platte South Natural Resources District officials said Thursday they were pleased by the court's ruling declaring the natural resource district law constitutional.

According to Harold Sieck, chairman of the Lower Platte South district, Nebraska's position as a leader in soil and water conservation "has been enhanced by this decision.

"In any legislation as unique as that involving the formation of natural resources districts, a court test is both justified and helpful," he said.

Noting that no other state in the nation has formed natural resources districts, Sieck said that since the court has determined the legality of NRDs, "it is time to move forward and accomplish our objectives in a spirit of cooperation."

Sieck also stated that the decision will bring about substantial reductions in bookkeeping costs resulting in a savings to the taxpayer.

Garfinkel Is Hired By UNO

Omaha (AP) — A noted political scientist and authority in public administration will become vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) Sept. 1.

He is Dr. Herbert Garfinkel of Michigan State University. His appointment was announced Thursday by UNO Chancellor Ronald W. Roskens.

Roskens said the appointment is expected to receive formal approval from the Board of Regents Aug. 31.

Roskens also announced that Dr. William L. Gaines, now dean of academic affairs, will become dean of international affairs and director of summer sessions and special programs effective Sept. 1.

Mercury Dips To Tie Record

By The Associated Press

The temperature plunged to 52 degrees at North Platte early Thursday, equaling the record for the date set in 1911.

But, it was even cooler with Sidney having the state low of 50 degrees and Scottsbluff reporting 51. Also having 52 were Valentine and Chadron.

Guilty Verdict Reached In 'Deep Throat' Case

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—For the second time in as many days, the owners of Omaha's Pussycat Theater were found guilty of distributing obscene material Thursday.

A Muncipal Court jury of four women and two men returned the verdict early Thursday afternoon.

The owners of the theater had been charged after the May 27th confiscation of the film "Deep Throat."

Officers of the vice squad impounded the film during a private showing.

The defendants were not present when the verdict was returned and Judge William Ryan was forced to defer the sentencing.

Wednesday, District Court Judge Samuel Caniglia fined the Pussycat owners a total of $4,000 after they were found guilty on four counts of distributing obscene materials.

The officers bought the books in March of 1972.

The two, rather closely related cases, are believed to be the first in Nebraska since the June U.S. Supreme Court ruling which returned the judgment of obscene materials to local officials.

Calf Crop May Total 2,193,000

The 1973 calf crop for Nebraska is expected to total 2,193,000 — a new record for the state.

This was the word Thursday from the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

A 2% increase is also indicated in the number of all cows, 2,330,000 head, in the state as of July 1, compared with the 1972 total.

Total Stocks Of Feed Grain 8,773,000 Tons

Total stocks of four feed grains July 1 in Nebraska totaled 8,773,000 tons, the Division of Agricultural Statistics reported Thursday.

The figure was one per cent higher than on the same date in 1972.

The four grains are corn, oats, barley and grain sorghum.

Corn stock stood at 272.9 million bushels, or two per cent higher than last July 1, the division reported.

Grain sorghum totalled 35.4 million bushels, a two per cent drop.

There were 68.1 million bushels of wheat, down 40 per cent from a year ago.

'Bob' Leaves Monsters, Muppets To Visit Lincoln

By LIANNE WETTERER
Star Staff Writer

Bob McGrath is a pretty special person to about 10 million kids. He is the "Bob" who lives on a street called Sesame, the only block in town where kids, monsters, grownups, muppets and an oversized canary live in educational harmony.

The bright-eyed Irish tenor was in Lincoln Thursday long enough to film a segment for Nebraska ETV, tour the Capitol and answer some queries.

In its first series, the show reached millions of preschoolers five days a week, won a Peabody Award, three Emmys and two dozen other prizes for excellence. As it begins its fifth season, it is still going strong.

Sesame Street's secret of success, McGrath said, is that it totally respects opinions of kids. It has the mind of a four-year-old and that's why it works.

"The thing aout kids is it takes them four seconds to know if you're really tuned-in to them," McGrath said. "If your not, they'll just turn around and walk away."

In the late 1960s, the show's originator, Joan Cooney, now president of Children's Television Workshop, finagled about $8 million from the Carnegie Corp., Ford Foundation and the U.S. Office of Education to experiment in early education via television.

McGrath said he thinks Sesame Street has "totally revolutionized children's programming."

"It goes to show what can happen when you go out and hire the best animators and film makers rather than just putting a classroom on TV," he said. "Nobody anticipated you could reach 10 million kids in this country and millions elsewhere."

Its announced goal is to teach economically depressed children recognition of letters, numbers and simple counting ability, beginning reasoning skills, vocabulary and increased awareness of themselves and the world.

But the series is slowly running out of money.

"The workshop is searching desperately for more money," McGrath said.

He said the show's cast and producers would rather not switch to commercial television, even if the production runs dry of funds.

"You're under pressure to constantly stay on top of the ratings, he said. "Besides, if we're getting through to underprivileged kids, the last thing I want to do is confront them with products they could never afford."

Meeting Planned

The Downtown Advisory Committee will meet Friday at 2 p.m. in the First National Bank Board Room.

Young Nebraskans To Appear At Rodeo

Burwell — The "Young Nebraskans" from Doane College will appear at Nebraska's Big Rodeo at Burwell on the Aug. 11 and 12 programs. The musical group is under the direction of Glenn Petersen, Doane College's director of vocal music. For the first time, the Burwell scheduled Aug. 9-12, will include a Sunday performance. A Sunday worship will also be held on the rodeo grounds at 11 a.m. under the direction of the local Congregational and Catholic churches.

Roof On Hope's Home Built By Kiewit

Omaha (AP) — The done-like mushroom shaped roof of Bob Hope's Palm Springs, Calif., dream house, destroyed by fire this week, was built by the Omaha firm of Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. A spokesoman for the Omaha firm said "only the roof had been completed" on Hope's home at the time of the fire. The Kiewit firm had contracted to build the huge domed roof, the spokesman said, but "there was no firm contract on the rest of the house yet." The planned house had been valued at $654,000.

Lutheran Women To Confer Next Week

Fremont (UPI) — Four hundred women from across the state will be on the Midland Lutheran College campus Aug. 1-3 for the 12th annual unit convention of the Nebraska Lutheran church women. The women are members of congregations affiliated with the Nebraska Synod of the Lutheran Church in America. Speakers will include Dr. Reuben Swanson of Omaha, president of the Nebraska synod, LCA, and Mrs. Marion P. Lane Jr. of Shenandoah, Va., national Lutheran church women representative.

Chadron To Host NSEA Conference

Chadron (AP) — The 22nd annual Nebraska State Education Association leadership conference will open here Friday at Chadron State College. Some 370 delegates are registered for the three-day conference. The sessions are designed to train and provide information for officers of local education associations. NSEA executive secretary John Lynch will address delegates Sunday.

Ft. Atkinson Museum Readied

Fort Calhoun (AP) — Nebraska will open its newest historical museum Monday in a huge trailer at old Ft. Atkinson, now a state historical park at Fort Calhoun. Park Supt. Steve Kemper said most of the displays in the museum will be ready and the public will be welcome. The displays — artifacts, paintings, photographs and other materials — will cover periods up to about 1833, when the fort, abandoned in 1827, was seen in ruins by passersby.

Junior High Players Set Record

Hastings (AP) — A group of Hastings Junior High School students played a 10-hour basketball game and raised $1,000 for the Adams-Clay County Mental Retardation Association. The money will be used to buy sports equipment for association programs, it was reported. The game that involved 26 boys was organized by Rick Rader, who will be a freshman at the junior high this fall. Local officials said they checked with the basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass., and were told the game would establish a record for a marathon basketball game involving 9th grade boys.

. . . Fund Drives May Resume

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Two universities will present their ideas for developing a $40 million Boys Town Center for the Study of Youth Development.

Archbishop Daniel E. Sheehan Thursday said Stanford University of Palo Alto, Calif., and Catholic University of Washington have been invited to make presentations in the fall. The center would be a nationwide research complex with headquarters on the 1,500-acre Boys Town campus.

As currently outlined, the center would have branches at a West coast and an East coast university. Only Stanford and Catholic Universities have been invited to make the initial presentations, Archbishop Sheehan said.

The archbishop also said the Boys Towns board of directors would consider a $30 million Boys Town Institute for the Study and Treatment of Hearing and Speech Disorders in Children.

Archbishop Sheehan also said Boys Town may resume fund drives — perhaps before Christmas this year.

Appeals for money ceased in 1972, after newspaper stories disclosed the institution had become rich, with a net worth of $217 million this year.

Resumption of fund drives apparently would be pegged to the need for money to support new projects, according to the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis P. Schmitt.

Last November, Msgr. Schmitt, assistant secretary-treasurer of Boys Town, said class-action suits probably will be filed against the institution on the grounds that it could not divert funds to purposes other than caring for homeless boys. Thursday, Schmitt said basing new fund drives on the new projects probably would avoid the suits.

Research would become an additional major Boys Town activity if current plans are carried out. The additional activity would not affect the tax-exempt Boys Town status, a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service said.

Archbishop Sheehan said there would be a series of board meetings in August to consider proposals by a New York consultant hired in January to suggest new directions for the 700-boy institution.

Enlargement of the board was known to be one of the suggestions made by the New York consultants, Booz-Allen, Hamilton. The board now has 15 members, all Omaha residents.

Archbishop Sheehan also said the next director of Boys Town probably would be a priest from the 23-county area of the Omaha archdiosese.

He said the board has formed a study committee to find two deputy directors who would not be priests.

"They would be highly qualified professionals and one would handle the educational aspects of Boys Town and one the administrative work," he said. Both men would report to the director.

He emphasized that there are no immediate plans to name a successor to the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Nicholas H. Wegner, a native of Humphrey, Neb., who has been director since Sept. 15, 1948.

"Monsignor Wegner is 75 and has been in ill health recently," Archbishop Sheehan said. "Someday a successor will have to be selected."

Doctors In North Bend Begin Two-Year Service

By KEN GRAY
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

North Bend — A community that has been without a physician for five years, now has two young doctors, compliments of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Doctors William E. Harmon, who just completed his residency at Boston Children's Hospital, and Frank J. Weirman, who finished his internship recently in Allentown, Pa., began their two-year servince in North Bend July 19.

Harmon and Weirman are officers in the National Health Service Corp., a division of the Public Health Service (PHS) under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Their two years of service to this eastern Nebraska community are undertaken in lieu of military service.

Weirman explained that PHS locates communities that are suffering from a shortage of health services, and classifies them by regions across the country. The volunteers pick the region they are interested in serving, and are then offered a list of towns and the needs of each location from which to make their choice.

Poor Distribution

"Harmon decided to come here," Weirman said, "because outside of Lincoln and Omaha there are only four pediatricians in the state." Dr. Harmon will help to relieve much of the load on the pediatrician who serves Fremont. The Fremont doctor, according to Weirman, was seeing from 70 to 80 patients a day.

"The community is required to put out effort in support of the doctors as far as running the business of setting up a doctor's office," Weirman said.

A non-profit corporation, Community Health Services, Inc., was formed. The corporation serves as a board of directors to set medical policy and provide all equipment and ancillary personnel.

As commissioned officers, Senior Assistant Surgeon Weirman and Senior Surgeon Harmon are paid a salary by the health service. State Department of Health guidelines will be followed in charging fees, from which the doctor's salaries, operating costs and health service costs will be paid. If income exceeds these costs, the money will be used for area health improvements.

Although their salaries are based on the equivalent service ranks, "this is not a personal sacrifice for us," Weirman said. He explained that as a general practitioner in business for himself, over a two year period, he would probably just break even.

Hospital Background

"The two of us decided we wanted to go in this program because we are of a hospital-based background. We liked this program as opposed to private general practice because we don't have any personal outlay of money."

Serving an area from Schuyler on the west to Fremont on the east, south as far as Prague and north to Snyder, the Main Street doctor's clinic will be open six days and three nights a week.

Of course, the goal for the community of North Bend is to convince these two doctors to stay after their two years of service have expired. Arden D. Wolf, president of Community Health Services, Inc., said he felt the two doctors are necessary to the community, and that the people will go a long way in enticing them to stay.

"I hope that we have to build a big clinic (the doctors are now operating out of a small storefront building), and we'll provide the money, don't worry about it," Wolf said.

Educational Freedom Defined

. . . British Educator Raps Fads

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Freedom in education does not mean lack of structure, curriculum and direction, nor does it mean latching onto fad concepts merely because they're the newest things.

Rather, said, Ms. Elizabeth Aggett, "My philosophy is geared to meet the needs of the children."

Headmistress of the progressive Eveline Lowe Primary School in London, England, Ms. Aggett Thursday evening discussed current trends in British primary education at the annual summer conference of the Nebraska Council of School Administrators (NCSA) in Lincoln.

Some education trends, she said, are moving in undesirable directions because of social pressures, urban living and the "fads which beset us on all sides."

At the same time, she said she doesn't subscribe to relying on old concepts. "Certainly we learn from the past but inevitably we go on."

Four Principles

She explained four principles basic to progressive education:

First, "we have come to realize that how children feel about what they know is more important than what they know." She stressed the importance of long-term results.

In Britain, she said, "we are paying attention to children's interests as a starting point and as a basis of learning," which has modified the subject approach into the integrated day.

Must Be Ready

"The second principle," Ms. Aggett said, "is the realization that we cannot learn anything at any age until we are ready for it. Readiness for learning is a complex matter of mind and body and environment, and the teacher's job is to surround the children with materials that can arouse their interest and lead them from there."

Third, she said, "if we want children to be good thinkers, we must pay attention to the many kinds of thinking and not merely rely on remembering and following instructions."

Finally, she submitted that "the school must take responsibility for many of the functions previously undertaken by the home or the small community."

The British open plan school evolved, Ms. Aggett said, when teachers sought more space. First, one opened his door, and students began to spill out into corridors. Then other teachers opened their doors and gradually "not one space (in the school) was left unattended very long."

The Eveline Lowe Primary School is the first building designed and built to accommodate the open education concept. Ms. Aggett's school curriculum adapts to the child instead of vice versa.

Dislikes Labels

She said although she dislikes labels, her staff practices what could be called team teaching, vertical grouping, mixed ages and the integrated day, but they do not conduct them categorically or consciously.

"You just set it up and they learn," she said, but warned "there are also those who will slip through the net if you don't watch them."

Still, Ms. Aggett, said, "we allow the child as much freedom as possible" because in London, the students' home environments make it difficult for them to establish relationships.

She attributed the success of the flexible open plan to the British school administrators: "They give us as heads complete freedom to decide what we should do in our schools," from choosing their staffs and materials to forming their own educational philosophies.

Ms. Aggett addressed more than 100 educators Thursday evening. The conference, which ends Friday, is sponsored jointly by the NCSA and the University of Nebraska Teachers College.

Olson, Wilhelms Get NCSA Awards

Nebraska Council of School Administrators (NCSA) distinguished educator awards were bestowed Thursday on Mel Olson and Fred Wilhelms as Nebraska educators met in Lincoln for a conference on emerging educational models and alternatives.

Olson is the chief of administrative services in the State Department of Education. Wilhelms, a former Nebraskan, recently retired as executive secretary of the Association of Supervision and Curriculum Development of the National Education Association.

The awards were presented at a banquet which capped a day of presentations and discussions on educational innovations.

Speakers during the day included Allan Glatthorn of the University of Pennsylvania and Elizabeth Aggett of London.

The two-day conference, which drew more than 200 Nebraskans Thursday, is sponsored by NCSA and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Teachers College.

Attorney's Outside Work Said Minimal

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City Atty. Dick Wood said Thursday that the amount of private practice conducted by his deputies is quite limited.

Wood's comment came in response to Councilwoman Helen Boosalis's question asking if there had been a major policy change regarding private practice by city attorneys.

She pointed out that County Atty. Paul Douglas had asked the Lancaster County Board for wage hikes for his deputies.

Private Practice

In comparing the county wage scale with the city's, Douglas was quoted as saying that not only do city attorneys pull higher wages, but they practice law on the outside. Douglas said the amount of private practice conducted by his deputies is minimal.

Resonding, Wood stated, "Private practice in our office is very limited. Very."

With the law department's increasing work load, Wood said, "Quite frankly, we don't have the time to do extensive private practice."

He added he thought the amount of private practice "going on now is less than four years ago."

On Own Time

The city's ten attorneys are permitted to practice law only on their own time, Wood explained.

The majority of the extra work involves such things as handling minor tax matters, estates and some litigation.

Said Wood, "I agree."

"I see no reason to be ashamed of what we're paying," he commented, adding, "I'd go so far as to say the pay of the county attorneys' staff is disgracefully low."

Lincoln Lower

A comparison with city attorneys' salaries in Omaha and Des Moines reveals that wages are lower for the same posts in Lincoln.

For instance, Omaha pays its top city attorney $26,500, Wood said, while Des Moines pays $24,000. Lincoln pays $20,924.

Wood has requested $207,959 for salaries alone out of a $259,209 budget request.

On another subject, Boosalis asked for a list of the fees the city is paying privately practicing attorneys for handling the legal business of Lincoln Electric System, Lincoln General Hospital, the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District and the Railroad Transportation Safety District.

Officers Chase Speedy Cyclist Through City

The chase began at 40th and Randolph, police said, when the motorcyclist fled from a police cruiser that had red lights and siren on.

He sped across O Street at 55 mph and was finally stopped at 35th and Idylwild, police said.

The man was arrested for reckless driving, fleeing to avoid arrest, improper registration and driving on an expired state safety inspection sticker, according to police.

Square D Talks Are Adjourned, Ditzler Reports

The fifth round of negotiations in Omaha between Lincoln Square D Co. plant management and striking electrical workers union members was adjourned Thursday, according to Union Chairman Jeff Ditzler.

Ditzler said he "was not sure" when talks would be resumed, but said "it might be next week."

The strike began last January and involves nearly 400 members of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) Local 1536

Items Stolen From Trailer

The Lancaster County Sheriff's Office Thursday was investigating the theft of articles valued at over $250 from a mobile home trailer owned by Gerald Lachanzky, of 210 Sycamore Dr., which was parked at Pawnee Lake.

The articles taken included a metal detector, a pistol, a rifle, and fishing equipment. The burglary is the latest in a series of thefts from cars, campers and trailers parked near the lake.

Skylab 1 Shows Body Adaptable

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — As the Skylab 2 astronauts prepared for 59 days in space, scientists said Thursday the Skylab 1 crew's 28-day mission showed the human body apparently adapts to weightlessness by shedding unneeded muscle tissue, calcium and red blood cells.

At a Cape Kennedy news conference, medical scientists said the decrease in muscle tissue and calcium shown by the three Skylab 1 astronauts was similar to losses exhibited by people confined to bed for long periods.

They said the decrease in the number of red cells in the astronauts' blood — which averaged about 14 per cent for all three — apparently occurred because the spacemen breathed air that was at lower pressure and had a higher oxygen content than the normal air of earth.

The Skylab 2 crewmen — Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma — flew to Cape Kennedy from Houston, Tex., Thursday to begin final preparations for Saturday's 7:11 a.m. EDT blastoff to the orbiting scientific laboratory that is to be their home for two months.

The medical researchers said data from the Skylab 1 mission, which ended last month, showed that a 59-day stay should cause no serious medical problems. But the data raised some questions about the debilitating effects of the months-long flights necessary to reach Mars and the other planets.

Dr. Michael D. Whittle, a Royal Air Force medical officer working with NASA, said the Skylab 1 astronauts experienced the greatest weight loss in their legs.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

Flattery gets you everywhere with Leo. The same tactics could succeed with Libra. Gemini will often settle for glowing promises. Aries is apt to be too impatient for flattery or promises. Aquarius might appear to be a pushover but appearances, in this case, are deceptive. Taurus and Scorpio might want cash on the line. Cancer and Capricorn are concerned with track records. Each sign is vulnerable and strong in different ways. Virgo wants an outline and Sagittarius insists on a blueprint of future potential.

ARIES ((March 21-April 19): Check leases, tax shelters, property values. Get going on plan to streamline operations. Leo, Aquarius persons could figure in important ways. Money of other people must be considered. Don't overplay hand.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be reaching too far. Get proper material. You need information, instructions. One who taught you in past can again be your ally. Refuse to permit pride to stand in way of progress. Leo is in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Review bills, obligations. Don't spread yourself too thin. Means handle one task at a time. Sagittarian plays key role. Young person may make unreasonable demands. Know when to draw line. Giving in to everything would be costly error.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Vitality is debilitated if you don't get proper rest. Applies now more so than in recent past. Know it and do something about it. Be thorough. Awareness of details is a necessity. Thorough approach brings benefits.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What you have been pushing aside demands exposure. Some changes are in order, including revisions in your thinking process. Get priorities in order. You may be concerning yourself over matter that is out of your hands.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Friend may be drepressed and want to talk about it. Be receptive. Strive for harmony. One who means much to you is carrying too much responsibility. You make yourself — and others — happy by conceding some points. You will understand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be blocked by legal maneuver. Ride with the tide. Means don't make trouble for yourself. Obtain hint from Virgo message. Go back to starting point. Accept counsel from family member. Taurus is in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Handle responsibility in mature manner. You will get reward. But you can't rush or skip essentials. Older individual is willing to lend benefit of experience. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in important ways.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cash flow may be temporarily affected. Find loophole. Correct recent mistake. Finish what you started — leaving loose ends would be error. There are more efficient means of distribution. Look for them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pace may appear slow but you are getting closer to goal. Know it and be confident. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Past obligation surfaces. Friend at top insists on collateral, proof, reassurance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Follow instincts. You know what should be done despite possible objections by associate, co-worker. Rise above petty jealousy. You will receive credit. But it is necessary now for you to handle basic assignment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): One you took for granted makes known a problem. You find that others are growing up — and your approach must be changed. Be flexible, versatile. Correspondence needs attention. Message you ignored could contain information of value.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are direct and dynamic. You seldom are satisfied to merely be a spectator. You usually get off the sidelines and into the game. You are where the action is — August could be your most significant month of 1973. You attract persons born under Aries and Libra. You are fascinated with law, medicine and you are somewhat of an actor, too.

One Of Hooper Suspects Returned To Nebraska

IONIA, Mich. (AP) — One of two Michigan men charged in an April kidnaping and hog theft case has been returned to Nebraska, Ionia County authorities said Thursday.

Sheriff's deputies said Dennis Eugene Gerbracht, 29, of Greenville, Mich., waived extradition to Fremont, Neb., where he has been charged with kidnaping the Dale Snover family of Hooper and the theft of 300 hogs.

Gerbracht was arrested in Ionia Tuesday on warrants issued in Dodge City, Neb., charging him with larceny, kidnaping and auto theft.

The other man charged in the incident—Dale Otto Remling, 45, Sidney, Mich.—remained in Ionia County jail, authorities said. He was arrested on a bad check complaint and for alleged motor vehicle violations July 7, and later identified as a man sought by Nebraska authorities.

Nebraska officials allege Gerbracht and Remling posed as hog buyers at the Snover's farm April 26, then forced the Snovers and seven of their relatives and a hired hand into a truck. The 10 persons remained locked up for more than a day until the employe's wife went to the farm looking for her husband, authorities said.

Gerbracht and Remling also are accused of stealing two autos and a pickup truck, most of which were recovered within a few days, along with the hogs.

California authorities reportedly are seeking Remling as an escapee from a state prison in February 1971 and on grand larceny charges related to the June 1971 theft of an airplane. Kansas officials are said to want him in connection with the sale of stolen cattle in March 1969.

Nurse's Suit Is Dismissed

A $20,000 suit against Lincoln General Hospital has been dismissed by Lancaster County District Court Judge Samuel Van Pelt.

The suit had been brought by Martha Brown, a nurse at the hospital who claimed she was required to take a part-time job in the hospital as a result of irregular hiring practices for the job of assistant director. She had been assistant director.

Swift Announces Closing Of Plant In Grand Island

The firm, a division of Swift & Co., said the closings involve about 550 employes and will cut the company's beef production by 30 to 35 per cent.

"Due to the abnormal marketings of cattle since the beginning of Phase 4, we find it necessary to discontinue these beef slaughtering operations at the conclusion of the week," a spokesman at Swift's national office said here. "The plants will remain closed until such time as the supply situation concludes."

Gazette Ban Said To 'Protect' Youths

The "main thrust" of the Lincoln School Board's action prohibiting the distribution of the Lincoln Gazette on high school campuses was to "protect" students from exploitation, an attorney for the school board argued Friday.

In a hearing before U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom, Willis Hecht claimed the school board felt it had "no purpose to gather students together for solicitation."

In addition, Hecht argued, the board felt the distribution of the Lincoln Gazette interfered with school activities.

Hecht contended that many things compete for a student's attention while he or she is in school and that the board felt that no printed material, including comic books, should be brought in as students enter.

"We have never based our objection to distributing the Gazette at the school doors on the content" of the paper, Hecht claimed.

"There isn't a word in the Gazette that students haven't heard before, especially in this day and age when such words seem the order of the day," Hecht argued.

Hecht argued that banning distribution of the paper on high school campuses "does not seriously impede access to the newspaper."

Hecht claimed that the ban only meant that students had to walk an extra 20 feet at Lincoln High or an extra 200 feet at East High.

However, Nebraska Civil Liberties Union attorney James Kelley argued that stating "free or donation" while handing our Lincoln Gazette's was not "a solicitation per se."

Kelley contended that the statement was incidental to the spreading of information.

As a practical matter, Kelley argued, many copies of the paper were handed out and only a few donations were received, a fact which he contended showed that only a few students felt an obligation to pay for the paper.

The suit filed by the Lincoln Gazette Cooperative contends that prohibiting the distribution of the paper on high school campuses violates the First and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution and asks the court to lift the ban.

The suit contends that the real reason for banning the paper was that "persons unconnected with the school system" object to the editorial content of the paper.

Lincoln General Activity High

The Lincoln General Hospital Board of Trustees was told Thursday that June was the fifth straight month of extremely high hospital activity, resulting in a stable financial situation for the month.

An average daily census that averaged more than 210 for several months dropped below 200 in July, as expected, Administrator W. Robert Brungard told the board.

July and August are traditionally lower activity months.

In the Chemical Dependency Unit, the board was told, activity was not as bright.

The number of patients there dropped as low as seven recently, lowest since last November.

Activity in the unit, which treats alcohol and other chemically dependent patients, has been higher during the past few months after about a year and a half of very low usage.

Civilian Service Chiefs' Posts Mostly Ceremonial

©The New York Times

By JOHN W. FINNEY

Washington — The civilian secretary of a military service rates a 19-gun salute and can command a personal airplane, a limousine and a few aides around him. But he no longer has control over the operations of the troops that he is supposed to raise, train and equip.

The ceremonial trappings remain from the days — 30 and more years ago — when the secretary of war and the secretary of the Navy were among the more powerful figures in government, sitting at the right hand of the president on military matters.

But the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force have found themselves progressively reduced to an administrative, ceremonial role in a centralized military establishment run by the secretary of defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The declining role of the service secretary was underscored by the admission Wednesday by former secretary of the Air Force Robert C. Seamans Jr. that he had not been informed of the secret bombing in Cambodia in 1969 and 1970. But, as Seamans quickly added, there was no reason he should have been informed since he was not in the operational chain of command.

To Seamans, this was obviously a source of embarrassment, just as he was embarrassed to learn over his television set in January, 1972, that intensive bombing of North Vietnam had been ordered. Now that he is out of office, he also can complain that "it doesn't make sense to have the title and not become involved in and have knowledge of what is going on."

Among the service secretaries, however, Seamans is not alone in his embarrassment or in complaining once he left office. While running for the Senate last year in Rhode Island, former Navy secretary John H. Chafee said he had not known planes were mining the harbors of North Vietnam in the spring of 1972 and would have objected if he had been informed.

To some, such as Sen. Harold H. Hughes of Iowa, a member of the senate armed services committee, such bypassing of the service secretaries on operational decisions represents a serious flaw in civilian control over the military.

But from another perspective, the reason the service secretaries are being bypassed is because of a wish to establish more centralized, and thus presumably more effective, civilian control.

The status, authority and prestige of the service secretaries has been eroding ever since the Defense Department was created in 1949 with the stated purpose of establishing centralized civilian control over the largely independent military services.

The service secretaries had until then served in the president's cabinet, but they were displaced by the secretary of defense, a demotion from which they have never completely recovered in terms of their prestige.

How to fit the service secretaries into the concept of civilian control was difficult in a defense establishment that was increasingly managed by a secretary of defense assisted by an expanding platoon of assistant secretaries who by protocol ranked below the service secretaries but in fact wielded greater power.

In 1953, President Eisenhower, drawing on his military experience, sought to bring the service secretaries back into the operational chain of command, which had fallen largely under the control of the chiefs of staff.

In a reorganization plan approved by Congress, the military departments — and thus the service secretaries — were designated as the exectuvie agents serving between the secretary of defense and the field commands.

The concept was that the Joint Chiefs of Staff would engage in planning while operations would be directed by the secretary of defense working through the military departments, which would serve as the contact point for the overseas commands.

By 1958, when intercontinental missiles had added a new urgency to centralized control, President Eisenhower had found this system "cumbersome and unreliable in time of peace and not usebale in time of war."

As a result, Congress in 1958 approved legislation reorganizing the Defense Department to give greater authority to the secretary of defense and establishing a new chain of command from the president to the secretary of defense through the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the military commands in the field. With that law, the service secretaries were explicitly removed from the operational chain.

Collision Kills Three Blue Angels

The spokesman said four planes were flying in formation, with three planes on top and one below, at the time of the collision. The planes collided during a "slow roll" by the formation.

One witness said a wing on the lower plane touched one of the three planes above it during the roll and both planes exploded. Another witness, correspondent Jerry Carey of the Asbury Park Press, also said he saw an explosion.

The dead were identified as Navy Lt. Cmdr. Skip Urmstead, 30, of Detroit; Marine Capt. Michael Murphy, 29, San Antonio, Tex., and Navy Petty Officer 1C Ronald Thomas, 30, Ponca City, Okla.

'WHAT A LIAR' . . . said Inouye, above, of John D. Ehrlichman. →

Inouye Hopes He's Licked Tongue Slip

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, embarrassed Wednesday when a live microphone caught him saying "what a liar" in reaction to John Ehrlichman's testimony, thinks he has the problem solved.

The senator was asked about the slip, which occurred after he had finished questioning Ehrlichman and after his mike was supposedly dead.

"What's that mean, senator?" he was asked.

"That means from now on I talk to myself in Hawaiian," he replied with a smile.

It was also observed that during the hearings Inouye kept the microphone turned away from him at arm's length.

Women Arrested For White House Praying

WASHINGTON (AP) — A total of six women have been arrested in the past two days for kneeling in prayer on the White House grounds, police said Thursday.

More than 50 persons have been arrested for similar protests during the course of the summer, according to a member of the Community for Creative Nonviolence, which reportedly sponsors the kneel-ins.

All six women arrested Wednesday and Thursday were charged with illegal entry and released on their own recognizance, police said. In both instances, the women were holding up the line of tourists going through the executive mansion, according to police.

In Thursday's incident, police said three women waiting to enter the East Portico of the White House suddenly knelt in prayer. The women were identified as Theresa Mary Kohlenberg of Cambridge, Mass., Barbara Jean Jenkins of Waterbury, Conn., and Diane Linda Orr of New York City.

UIN Head Takes Job To 'The People'

By Nancy Hicks
Star Women's Editor

STAR PHOTO

Like the circuit riding preachers of old, he packs his bedroll and takes off to visit his people in the far corners of the state.

And it's all a part of his job as head of the United Indians of Nebraska (UIN), a coalition of 32 of the 48 Indian organizations in the state, and the first viable Indian coalition in any state.

"You've got to live and work among the people, too," said John Twobrids Arbuckle, whose $2,200 a year job as executive chairman director brings him into contact with almost every type Nebraskan imaginable.

His pursuasive and colorful oratory attracts money from the pockets of the wealthier to use in projects for Nebraska Indians.

"One of our objects is to get white involvement in Indian problems" said Arbuckle who believes that commitment of dollars means an investment in what is going on.

"They nickle and dime and dollar you. When you leave one place there is always 60 cents or a dollar for the gas to the next place," said Arbuckle proudly.

The UIN was born out of several years of frustrating attempts by a group of churches under the umbrella of Interchurch Ministries of Nebraska and Church Women United to put together an Indian coalition.

As the money for the venture was about to run out, "we asked them if they would let us try to organize it," said Arbuckle.

The Interchurch Ministries provided $2,500 in seed money for an all-Indian conference of 18 Indian organizations plus the three recognized tribes, Winnebago, Sante Sioux and Omaha.

Out of this October, 1972 conference came the infant organization with its executive board and officers elected from that board. Arbuckle formerly an American Indian Movement (AIM) coordinator, was elected to a two-year term as executive chairman.

But until January the group was an organization in name only. Then, armed with a $50,000 grant, again through the board of Interchurch Ministries, the UIN began its work with Indians throughout the state.

The UIN, according to Arbuckle, fills the large gap between the national level organizations which do good, but in an intangible way, and the grass roots level, where groups may not have the money nor the expertise to carry off needed projects.

UFN is already funding about nine projects throughout the state and is working to secure pledges from private foundations and individuals for another $890,000 which will go for an additional 35 projects, according to Arbuckle.

Unlike other service type organizations where the salaries and administrative expenses take the biggest bite of the budget, the UIN is committed to spending the money for its people first.

"The Bureau of Indian Affairs spends approximately 80% of their budget for operations and 20% for people. We have reversed those figures," said Arbuckle.

And the paid staff works more out of commitment than for financial gain. In fact the secretary, one of the three full-time members, makes more than Arbuckle.

"That's hard to explain to Internal Revenue. They think we're up to something sneaky," said Arbuckle.

The UIN, after only four months of actual operation, is already hard at work in its three main areas — social work, education, and as consultants or catalysts.

UIN is a catalytic type of organization, Arbuckle explained. Each member group controls its own organization, while UIN writes proposals to get money, or solicits donations for specific programs that member groups may need.

As the consultant, UIN acts as a holding agency for the program funds and makes certain the money is used for its intended purposes.

One such project is the Indian Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program, where UIN money is paying some training costs for a counselor. Future funds will provide part of the counselor's salary and some of the costs for hoped-for halfway house.

UIN has also donated sewing machines to a women's sewing club in Lincoln, hoping they will produce clothing that is Indian-oriented and Indian-designed. They are also looking for retail outlets to handle the sale of the clothing.

Other current projects include funds for a native arts and crafts program with the Lakota Assn. in the Scotts Bluff Platte Valley area, a corn planting program, legal services, youth programs and money for maintenance of the Sante Sioux tribe's new ambulance.

The organization's social work, both time consuming and necessary, centers around helping with individual problems in housing, employment, financial and family crises.

The counseling aspect often stretches Arbuckle's working days far into the night. The small staff handles crisis situations when they occur, whether during or after working hours.

But Arbuckle is realistic about just how much counseling can do. "We can't always help them, but they are gaining confidence and see that the system can be used. They feel a little better if one of us calls the Welfare Department and makes an appointment. Someone has broken the ice for them," he said.

The educational aspects of UIN include education of whites and Indians. Arbuckle speaks to community, school, business, church and social groups. He gives lectures and workshops showing white Nebraskans what the Indian faces.

With a prepared questionnaire, he demonstrates that what whites believe to be Indian priorities are 180 degrees different than what the Indian feels are his priorities.

"Indians don't control their lives, their school boards, their government. You are making determinations based on your value system, for us without asking us," Arbuckle tells the groups.

The education also extends to the Indians. It involves trying to overcome tribalism — "we spend a lot of time fence mending and educating our people," said Arbuckle. And it means convincing the impatiently eager, young Indians that change is an ongoing process that "is not going to take place overnight."

The education process is even reflected in the choice of office space high in the Anderson building. The three-room suite reflects a blend of the Indian and the business worlds.

The faces of Red Cloud, Sitting Bull, Oh-Cun-Ga-Che or Little Wolf, and Chief Joseph look out at the impressive new office furniture, and several visitor's chairs are draped with furs.

Arbuckle himself, his hair braided and an Elk's teeth and bear claw necklace worked with traditional silver and turquoise hanging from his neck, is a living example that the Indian can "move into and compete with the mainstream Caucasian world while retaining his religion, culture and language."

Italian Women Hold Traditional Views

By PETER NICHOLS
(Dispatch Of The Times, London)

ROME — The average Italian woman believes that she has radically changed her outlook in comparison with women of the preceding generation. Their mothers would have regarded finding a husband as the first aim in life, where a young woman today looks first to an education, a job outside the home, independence of thought and a comfortable existence.

It can hardly be said to be borne out, however, by the greater part of the more detailed documentation.

The research was supervised by Prof. Fernando Dogana, who holds the chair of psychology at Chieti University.

The subject is of paramount importance in judging the extent and meaning of social change in Italy. In no other country have women been regarded as possessing so dominating an influence; and this despite the anti-feminist character of Italian law and customs.

The report shows that women in Italy have practically no interest in politics, are going out to work in decreasing numbers and oppose an innovation such as divorce which might seem both progressive and useful.

This study is the result of questioning 4,604 women and 1,930 men.

Fundamentally, Italian women are shown to be reasonably happy with their condition. Some 81 per cent felt that a woman's life had improved during the past two or three decades: The great majority believed that their own marriages had been a success, 44 per cent replying that their marriage went as well as others, and 47 per cent saying their marriage was rather better than others.

About 64 per cent said they would be women again if they could choose their next sex in a reincarnation; and the prinicpal early difficulties in their marriage were nothing more complicated than first, money, and secondly the mother-in-law.

About two-thirds of the women interviewed thought that they were either somewhat or very different in mentality from their mothers. Only 6 per cent thought the two generations were alike.

How this change has taken place (if, in fact, it has) is less precisely explained. About 69 per cent had never heard of women's liberation movements, and 14 per cent had "vaguely" heard of them: In the south only 8.8 per cent admitted to knowledge of these movements.

Of those who had heard of the movements, a third (32.2 per cent) felt they damaged the cause of emancipation, while 39.6 per cent thought they helped.

That masterpeice of mutual protection, the Italian family, is frequently said these days to be collapsing in face of modern social developments. But some 53.9 per cent of the women denied this.

Only 8.4 per cent thought the family totally wrecked as an institution.

A total of 51.7 per cent regarded motherhood as the principal preoccupation of a woman to which she should dedicate herself entirely.

Exactly half of the women felt that a happy sex life was "very important". Over half (51 per cent) would not say what they thought were the main causes of a lack of sexual satisfaction.

On abortion, opinions seemed clearly thought out. Very few (9 per cent) said they would permit abortion in every case in which the woman wanted it. But 77.7 per cent said they would favor it when pregnancy put the woman's life in danger.

On prostitution, which was legalized in licensed brothels until 1959, over half thought that the closing of the brothels was a mistake, and only 15.2 per cent were in favor of the measure.

The Italian working woman has a section to herself. By comparison with other European countries, proportionately few women go to work. In Italy, 18.5 per cent of women work.

The largest percentage — 37 per cent — of the women interviewed said they worked because their husbands earned too little. Only 8 per cent said they worked in order to be independent. This appears to make nonsense of the assertion that instead of hunting husbands like their mothers, the average Italian woman hunts education and a job.

GRACIA SIEB

CYNTHIA JOHNSON

In his last production at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, John Zei will direct Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 2, 3, 4 and 5.

The comedy opera will be presented at 8 p.m. each evening at Kimball Recital Hall.

The farcical tale concerns the dilemma of a lovesick young man, Alfred, who finds himself in jail, when he is mistaken for his mistress's husband, Eisenstein.

Eisenstein, portrayed by Roger Benjamin and Gary Lamb, is faced with the 14-day sentence after offending an official; however, instead of being imprisoned for the night — as his wife, Rosalinda, believes him to be — he attends Prince Orlofsky's masked ball.

While there, he meets and recognizes his wife's maid, Adele, dressed in her mistress' clothes. Later the unsuspecting Eisenstein is captivated by his wife who, being disguised, sets out to obtain proof of her husband's disloyalty.

Other cast members include Marilyn Cronin and Jeannie Dietrich as Rosalinda; H. Rick Brandt as Alfred; Sandra Utsumi as Adele; Terry Baughan and Kathleen Helton as Ida; Sara Ganz and Denise Weekes as Orlofsky; Tom Harvey as Dr. Blind; Kent Hall as Frank; George Carpenter as Frosch; and John Brandstetter as Dr. Falk.

It should be noted that Zei — who will serve as chairman of the opera department at Hartt College of Music, University of Hartford, Hartford, Conn. — came to UNL in 1964, and since that time has helped to make the university opera program one of the best in the Midwest.

Also, Zei directed and sang the lead role in the world premiere of Napoleon, which was written by UNL professor of music Robert Beadell and presented at the university last February.

First Federal Display

During the month of August, First Federal Savings and Loan Company will feature a display of paintings by Maureen Biggerstaff and charcoal sketches by her daughter, Penny Struble.

Working primarily with oil, Mrs. Biggerstaff will exhibit 40 pieces dealing with landscapes, portraits and still life. Among the works will be two large oils entitled "Courthouse and Jail Rock" and "Ironsides."

"The Taming of the Shrew"

Shakespeare's ever-popular comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew," will open at Howell Theatre Friday, Aug. 3, and will continue in repertory along with "Company" and "What the Butler Saw" through Sept. 1.

Steve Sheets is musical director for the play and other production personnel include Fran Brassard and Joy Butler, costume designers; Nancy Myers, set designer, Jerry Lewis, lighting designer, Muriel Herzog, dramaturge; and Carolyn Hull, director's assistant.

Production dates for "The Taming of the Shrew" are Aug. 4, 7, 9, 12, 15, 18, 21, 23, 26, 29, 31, and Sept. 1.

Following the closing of the repertory theatre at Howell the company will participate in a tour of Nebraska with performances at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 4, in Grand Island; 7:30 p.m. Sept. 5 in Broken Bow; 7:30 p.m. Sept. 6 in Kearney; tentative performance date Sept. 7 in Gothenburg; and 8 p.m. Sept. 8 in McCook.

At Brownville

Activities at Brownville this week will include several productions by the Brownville Village Theatre. They are "Night Watch" at 8 p.m. today with repeat performances at 8 p.m. Sunday and Thursday; "Don't Drink the Water" at 2:30 p.m. Saturday; "The Importance of Being Earnest" at 8 p.m. Saturday; and "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker" at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Also, a concert featuring the Brownville Music Festival faculty will be held Sunday.

Curtain Call

The Lincoln Municipal Band will play in concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Antelope Park.

A unique display of pottery using feathers, cowhide strips, wood, fur and bones will be exhibited at Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery through Aug. 5. Also at Sheldon is a photosilkscreen display by Larry Stark, entitled "50 States," which will be shown through Sunday.

Leave Personal Problems At Home

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will print this letter to my secretary. There must be many other executives who have this problem and don't know how to handle it tactfully.

Take a letter, Mrs. Brown:

You are an excellent secretary, but I wish you would leave your personal problems at home. I am not a marriage counselor or a financial adviser, and I haven't the time or energy to listen to problems concerning your children.

When you confide your personal problems to me, Mrs. Brown, altho I may appear interested and sympathetic, the truth is, I am very uncomfortable, and I resent using my time (and yours) on such matters.

I value your services and don't want to seem unfeeling or unkind, but I would like our relationship to be strictly impersonal and professional.

YOUR BOSS

DEAR BOSS: I don't know how many bosses share your view, but I'm sure many of their wives do. When a secretary starts crying on her boss's shoulder, she frequently ends up in his arms. The only way to discourage personal conversations (in the office and out) is to abort them at the onset.

DEAR ABBY: We are a one-car family, and because I want to use the car during the day, my husband is picked up every morning by Harry, a cowarker. Harry also gives my husband a ride home every evening. (My husband pays him well for his trouble.)

A few months ago Harry and his wife separated, so Harry started coming a few minutes early to have "coffee" with my husband. Pretty soon Harry came a little earlier and had a "bite" of breakfast. Now he comes good and early and sits down to a full course breakfast with us every morning.

Not only that, but after work Harry doesn't just drop my husband off, he comes in for a "drink." Then he sits around hinting that he has no plans for supper, so I have to ask him to stay. I am up to here with that guy. My husband doesn't want to insult Harry because he has to work with him, and I don't think it's my place to tell him off. What do you suggest!

HAD IT WITH HARRY

DEAR HAD IT: How about letting your husband take the car to work for a while? The inconvenience of being without wheels would be a picnic compared to putting up with Harry.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl and I've never seen a problem like mine in your column.

A friend of mine, I'll call her Susan, was raped four months ago and she is pregnant. (She's my age.) Well, my Mom heard about it thru the neighborhood grapewine and now she won't let me go over to Susan's house anymore. Susan doesn't want the baby, and she doesn't believe in abortion, so she is giving it up for adoption when it's born.

They never caught the rapist, and my Mom thinks the rape story is a big lie — that Susan's boy friend (I'll call him "Jeff") did it to her. I know Jeff pretty well, and I don't think he would do anything like that to Susan.

Anyway, I don't think it's fair that I am not allowed to go to Susan's house. She called me once and asked why I didn't come over anymore and I didn't know what to tell her.

SUSAN'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Well, one thing you can't do is to disobey your mother. Since she didn't tell you you couldn't write to Susan, why don't you send her cheery cards and letters now and then? I agree, Susan does need friends right now.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 5-year-old nephew who really worries me. He is exceptionally bright, but I don't know where he gets this thing about money. He is absolutely fascinated with it.

He has a "piggy" bank which he can open himself, and he makes a game out of counting his money. He has no interest in toys, he just plays with his money.

I say it's unhealthy. His parents think it's cute. He gets a wild look in his eye when he handles money. It's really frightening.

Neither of his parents is money mad. Would I be out of line if I told his parents they should try to encourage him to find another hobby? Or am I concerned over nothing?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: A preoccupation with anything can be unhealthy. Tell his parents of your concern. But it's even money they won't do anything about it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HATES TO ARGUE BUT ALWAYS DOES IN HARTFORD: No one said it better than the late Justice Louis D. Brandeis when he said, "Behind every argument is someone's ignorance." Just be sure it isn't yours.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Thrift Shops Are "Where It's At"

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Where can you purchase an old copy of "The Methodist Hymnal?" Or, if you're not in the market for that particular publication, where can you go to find a crumbling edition of the "History of Theta Chi," or the "Elements of Trigonometry," vintage 1917?

Straight to any one of Lincoln's several "thrift" shops, that's where.

Featuring a motley, sometimes tattered collection of prose, poetry and reference books, second-hand stores such as those sponsored by Goodwill Industries, the Disabled American Veterans, the Salvation Army and the Junior League are virtual havens for book "freaks."

The titles are wide-ranging, including everything from Shakespeare to "Love Story," with a limitless selection of odds and ends in between.

History and psychology are there — right alongside astrology and bridge; and for those who like to be literate without making a real committment, "Reader's Digest Condensed Books" abound.

There are encylcopedias — whole sets as well as one-volume varieties — children's books, novels, text books, religions tracts and a sprinkling of "Cliff's Notes."

All of the shops' book collections number in the several hundreds, and, according to employes, books are among their most saleable items.

The book-buying clientele is just about as diverse as the merchandise they examine. Students, teachers, book collectors, and other miscellaneous types take their turns at the bookshelves, searching for this or that volume — or just anything that looks interesting.

Some have a purpose in mind. Mrs. Augusta Frank, who works at the Junior League Thrift Shop, mentioned one man who comes in regularly to buy "Reader's Digest" books. His collection of these condensed volumes dates back to 1951.

Some can't seem to stop with just one book. One thrift shop employe marveled at the actions of one patron who comes in regularly and leaves with a grocery sack full of books.

"Maybe she's a teacher or a student — I don't know," she speculated.

In most cases, the books — all of which are donated to the shops — are in good condition. Some even look like they've never been opened.

And, whatever else may be said, the price is certainly right. Paperbacks generally range from 5¢ to 25¢ apiece; and hardbound books go for 50¢ to a dollar, depending on their condition. It's even possible to pick up a set of encyclopedias for as low as $1.95.

So, if you're building a library on a budget, attempting to locate a hard-to-find book, or want to be the only one on your block to possess a 1923 "First Course In Algebra," the book sections of Lincoln's thrift shops are definitely "where it's at."

Save Energy In New Homes

"If you are selecting, building or remodeling a home, you have a golden opportunity to be an energy conservationist," according to Mrs. Mary Dale Christensen, Extension housing specialist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Don't provide more space than you'll need, because you'll have to heat, cool and light it, as well as clean it, she said. Don't leave a large area for a little used room, like a formal living room. If you'll use the family room more often, how large does a formal living room have to be?

Put your main entrance where it will be protected from winter winds, she said. And put "hot rooms," like the kitchen and laundry, in the cooler sections of the house—away from the west sun.

Use shades, screens and roof overhangs to protect the windows from the sun, and landscape the yard to give shade in the west.

Mrs. Christensen also suggested carpeting, because carpets and rugs are warmer than uncovered flooring.

A centrally located furnace will be more efficient than one that's not centrally placed, she said. Floors and walls should be insulated and all windows should have storm windows.

Design and orient the house so you don't have large west windows that are not shaded, she said. And consider the color of the room along with the location. Use warm colors, like red or yellow, in cool rooms so they'll seem warmer. Blue and green, cool colors, will make rooms seem cooler.

Bridge: A Quiz To Test Your Bidding Skill

You are the dealer, both sides vulnerable. What would you bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠ AQ974 ♥ K98732 ♦ A ♣ 6
2. ♠ AK8 ♥ AQ6 ♦ AJ9 ♣ Q954
3. ♠ 5 ♥ 93 ♦ QJ1085 ♣ AKQ106
4. ♠ AK87 ♥ AJ4 ♦ 873 ♣ 952

1. One spade. In general, a six-card suit is named ahead of a five-card suit. But when the suits are adjacent in rank and the high-card content of the hand is close to the allowable minimum, the higher-ranking suit is bid first—even though it is the shorter suit. The direct effect of this is that the bidding is kept at a relatively low level in a hand of limited strength.

2. One club. Players who are not point-count conscious might open the bidding with one or two notrump. Admittedly, this 20-point hand looks very notrumpish, considering its flat distribution and high-card strength, but it is far better to identify these aspects later on.

An opening one notrump bid shows 16 to 18 points; two notrump shows 22 to 24 points. These upper and lower limits are inflexible and cannot be varied without the risk of calamity. It is better to open a club and then jump to three notrump; this delivers the message much more accurately. If partner passes one club, the odds are great that there is no game in the hand.

3. One diamond. The fact that there are only 12 high-card points is not a good reason for passing. It is dangerous to pass such hands, chiefly because you would have a hard time later on making up for the pass.

Once you decide to open, it is better to start with a diamond than a club, in line with the general rule of first bidding the higher-ranking of two equally long suits.

4. Pass. The only other call that can be reasonably considered is a spade, but this would be begging for trouble because of the rebid problem that would arise if partner responded two clubs, diamonds or hearts.

Each of these responses would constitute a forcing bid, and it would be impossible to find a rebid that would not misrepresent your high-card values or your distribution. It is better to pass originally on a borderline hand than run the risk of being faced later with an insoluble bidding problem.

Judge Halts Plans For Oxford School

HOLDREGE, Neb. (AP)—District Court Judge Norris Chadderdon issued a temporary restraining order Thursday against the Educational Service Unit of District 11 and its board members.

The board voted in May to move the school from its present location in Ragan to Oxford.

Their petition contends that: Holdrege is more centrally located in the unit served by the school, that it is the most populous center in the unit and that a two-acre tract of land is available in Holdrege with a perpetual lease of $1.00 per year.

The petition further claims: that cash donations for the Holdrege site would be $5,600 or more, that the school could be built at the same cost as the Oxford plan and that 74 per cent of the parents of children who attend the school favor the Holdrege location.

Scotts Bluff Law Officer Exonerated In Shooting

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb. (AP)—A Scotts Bluff County Deputy Sheriff has been exonerated in connection with a shooting incident July 15th near here.

A report released by County Attorney Marvin Holscher was sent to the Board of County Commissioners.

The report was the result of an investigation to determine if Deputy Bernie Clark, 25, had acted within the law in his handling of the case.

Clark was suspended after he shot Leopoldo Veliz-Valadez, 17, of Mitchell, Neb., in the back of the shoulder.

Clerk said the youth had tried to run him down with the deputy's squad car during a disturbance at a beer party.

The report concluded that Clark had not used unreasonable force by using his revolver, and had acted within his authority.

Phelps County Ex-Surveyer Files Suit

HOLDREGE, Neb. (AP)—Former Phelps County Surveyor Gene Haddan has filed suit against the Phelps County Board of Supervisors and Phelps County.

The petition, filed in district court, alleges that Haddan had been elected to the office of county surveyor in November 1971, but was notified by the County Supervisors that his position was vacant last September.

Haddan's petition seeks a judicial interpretation of two state statutes; one regarding the removal of elected officials, and the other which requires the registration of county surveyors.

No hearing date was set.

Man Wanted In Con Scheme Gives Self Up

SCHUYLER, Neb. (AP)—A man wanted in connection with an alleged con game surrendered to Colfax County authorities.

E.K. Bearden, who had peviously forfeited $10,000 bail, was accompanied by his lawyer when he gave himself up, authorities said.

Authorities allege Bearden was one of three men involved in a check altering scheme that centered on collecting money in the disguise of utility repairmen

Bearden will be held in custody until a hearing Friday, it was reported.

Law enforcement officials in Sheridan County, Neb., and Garland, Tex., also want to question Bearden, authorities said.

Man Announces A Special Find At Young Home

MENDON, N.Y. (AP) — A museum director says he may have found the wedding ring of the first wife of Brigham Young, who led the Mormons by wagon train to Great Salt Lake Valley in Utah.

J. Sheldon Fisher, head of the Valentown Museum, said he found the ring in mud at the site of Young's old home and shop where he lived and worked for about five years in the 1830s.

Omaha — Borrowing notes and quotes from the 5th Down, official publication of the Football Writers Association while making a hurry-up trip to Chicago in the midst of the Nebraska Men's State Amateur Golf Tournament to take part in the board of directors meeting of the association:

A warning that most of the following has little to do with sports other than it comes out of a sports publication which costs us $5 per year and we're letting you in on it for only 10 cents:

The guy who caught the ball, alas

Corky McKay, wife of Southern Cal coach John McKay, who will coach the All-Star squad against the Miami Dolphins Friday night, was rewarded with a standing ovation after a sparkling speech to the Trojan Alumni Club with John himself leading the ovation.

John explained, "I was getting up to go to the men's room when she suddenly stopped talking. What a surprise. I was just standing there like an ouf. There wasn't anything else to do but start clapping."

A group of Cub Scouts, visiting an FBI office, were shown photos of the 10 most wanted men in the United States. "Why," asked one boy, "didn't they keep them when they took these pictures?"

The Minneapolis Star asks, "Did you know that Christopher Columbus was responsible for the thinking of modern government? He didn't know where he was going when he started; he didn't know where he was when he got there, and he did it all on borrowed money."

Fat Fox Charter Member

Nebraska sports information director Don (Fat Fox) Bryant is a charter member (there are only three of them) of the Order of the Golden Mousetrap.

It's a club formed by the nation's sports information directors and to be a member your team has to have been leading in a bowl game going into the final quarter, then lose.

The other two charter members also are from the Big Eight with former Oklahoma publicist Harold Keith earning the distinction on Oklahoma's 28-27 loss to SMU in the 1968 Bluebonnet Bowl and ex-Kansas SID Jay Simon for the Jayhawks' 15-14 loss to Penn State in the 1969 Orange Bowl.

Time To Clean House

A husband was heard to moan, "My wife doesn't think it's time to clean house until the phone rings and she can't find it."

The Baltimore Sun says, "Amazing, aren't they — these young things with the fancy hairdos and skin-tight pants. And the girls are even worse."

Lady driver, racing down the highway a bit above the speed limit, looked in the rear view mirror and saw a patrolman closing in on her. She raced on, pulling into the first gas station and rushed to the ladies room. When she came out the patrolman was standing by her car.

The Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal says, "A person gets married because of lack of judgment, divorced because of lack of patience, and remarried because of lack of memory."

Lady in a New York taxi-cab saw the driver slow up to avoid a pedestrian. He explained, "If we hit 'em, we got to fill out a report."

Three Favorites, Matlock Win In Gals' Meet

By RANDY YORK

Hastings — Gabrielle Matlock may be cast as an obscure character in a veteran field, but she also may be the one to beat here in the 55th Nebraska Women's State Golf Tournament.

Friday's other semifinal will match Wilber's Christie Travnicek, who sidelined 4-time state champion Jean Hyland of Lincoln, and her mother, Dorothy Schwartzkopf, also of Lincoln.

It will mark the mother-daughter combination's third confrontation in state tournament play. The pair split previously with Dorothy defeating Christie, then age 16, for the 1965 state title and Christie outlasting her mother in the 1970 semifinals enroute to her second state championship.

Miss Matlock has come a long way to join the state women golfing elite. "Last year when Bunnie was winning the tournament," Gabrielle says of her semifinal opponent, "I was playing in the fourth flight. I've never played her. In fact, I've never even been close enough to touch her."

But the former Grand Island High School track sprinter isn't awed by qualifying for the semifinals and is convinved she's as good as anyone "when I put everything together."

No one would dispute that. Through the first three days of this 5-day grind, Miss Matlock has been a model of consistency. Thursday she would have shot an 80 had she parred the last two holes in her 3 and 2 win over Ms. Walker after firing a 38 on the front nine.

"Yesterday, my game between the tee and the green was really good and my chipping and putting fell off a little," noted Miss Matlock. "Today, it was exactly the opposite. I hope to get it all together for the semis."

Gabrielle started getting it together last spring at Midland where the school's golf coach, Dr. Cecil Walker, cleared the way for her to compete on the men's team.

"I really learned there," she relates. "All the guys were better than I was, but they encouraged me. The low five scores would qualify each Monday for spots on the team. I usually was fighting for the fifth spot. I was grateful for the chance."

The 19-year-old Grand Island golfer continued to improve. The first part of July "I was in the 70's consistently" at her home Riverside course and "I shot a 79 here at Lochland once."

Despite coasting to her Thursday win, Dorothy experienced two bad holes, getting a double bogey 7 on No. 5 and a triple bogey 8 on No. 7.

"I was tired. I think watching Christie yesterday wore me out," said Dorothy, who shot a 45 on the front nine and would have had a 39 on the back nine had she parred out.

Christie said she also felt signs of fatigue. "I think I played 45 holes in my sleep last night," she related after outlasting Mrs. Hyland, who had beaten Christie in the quarterfinals last year at Millard.

Again, Christie had to show bounceback powers. She was one down after nine holes, but won Nos. 10 and 11 and stayed ahead for good. She shot a 43 on the front nine and was three over par through No. 17 on the second nine.

How will the mother and daughter approach Friday competition?

"You just have to say to yourself that it's another round and try to play the best you can and forget about your opponent," said Dorothy, who admitted, however, "that it'll be hard to do."

Championship flight semifinal pairings:

9:12 a.m. — Christie Ravnicek, Wilber, v. Dorothy Schwartzkopf, Lincoln; 9:10 a.m. — Gabirelle Matlock, Grand Island, v. Bunnie Phillips, Norfolk.

9:24 a.m. — Nanette Circo, Omaha, v. Laurie Glass, Beatrice; 9:30 a.m. — Debbie Sandstedt, Omaha, v. Mary Desch, Grand Island.

LEY ALONE AT TOP

Borner Tied At Second In Men's State Meet

By HAL BROWN

Star Sports Editor

Omaha — Charlie Borner of North Platte and Mike Ley of Lincoln, Wednesday's first-round leaders with 3-under-par 69s in the Nebraska Men's State Amateur Golf Tournament, headed in different directions after finishing their second round Thursday at the Highland Country Club.

Borner turned in his score card which showed a 5-over-par 77 and immediately headed for the practice putting green.

Ley, playing in the last group to finish, turned in his card with a 2-over-par 74 on it and headed immediately for the 19th hole to get a beer.

Ley's 74 gave him a two-day total of one-under-par 143 and a three-stroke lead over a quartet of golfers going into Friday's third round of the 72-hole tournament.

Borner's 77 put him in that quartet at 146, a group that also includes Tom Sieckman of Millard, who fired the only sub-par round Thursday, a one-under-par 71, Howard Cohn of Omaha, and Ken Beckard of Omaha.

Mike Ley

He hit only 13 Wednesday in recording a 69.

"The greens were more difficult to putt," he added. He hit all nine greens in regulation on the back side but got only two birdies, with a two-foot putt at the 15th and a six-footer at the 17th.

"When I heard that Charlie (Borner) had a 77," Ley observed, "I figured I'd really have a big lead if I could shoot a good round." But playing the front nine as his second nine, he couldn't put that "good round" together, taking a double-bogey on No. 5 after bogeying the second, considered by most to be a birdie hole.

"I putted at some on the last few holes" he pointed out, mentioning six-footers at the seventh and eighth holes that didn't drop Borner, like Ley, also played the back nine first Thursday.

Borner's biggest disaster came at the 13th where he took a double-bogey after hitting his second shot in the water from a bad lie in the rough.

"I just couldn't get any momentum," he explained. "I worked hard to get it back, but I just couldn't concentrate today. I've got to get my concentration back."

Sieckman, a recent graduate of Millard High School who played in the morning, also started on the back side and was two-over par after three holes.

But he then birdied the 13th from 10 feet, the 14th from 14 and the 15th from 12 feet, he barely missed a fourth straight birdie when a 20-footer lipped the cup and stayed out at No. 16.

The field of 150 was cut to the low 54 and ties after Thursday's round with a 36-hole total of 158 needed to qualify for the final two rounds Friday and Saturday

The major casualty of those not making the cut was Jim Hogeland, Alma, who finished second in last year's tournament. Hogeland shot two 80s for a 160 total and failed to qualify for the final two rounds.

Borner and Ley will play in the same threesome Friday, teeing off at 10:24 a.m.

Those qualifying for the final two rounds:

Rookie, Veteran Head Major League Action

By The Associated Press

Rookie pitcher Steve Rogers and veteran moundsman Bob Gibson shared the baseball headlines Thursday night as the major leagues resumed action after the three-day break for the All-Star game.

Rogers threw a one-hitter for Montreal in shutting out Philadelphia 4-0. Gibson socked a grand slam homer and a single to drive in five runs in leading St. Louis over the New York Mets 13-1. In the process chalked up his 236th career victory and became baseball's winningest active pitcher.

Both achievements came in the openers of doubleheaders and started the Expos and the Cardinals on the way to sweeps. The Expos beat the Phils 5-1 in their second game. Joe Torres' eighth inning homer gave the Cards a 2-1 nod over the Mets in their nightcap.

San Francisco also swept a twin bill from San Diego 10-2 and 6-5 in 10 innings while in single games the New York Yankees blanked Milwaukee 1-0 in 12 innings and Detroit edged Boston 6-5.

Texas took two from California 7-1 and 8-0. Jim Bibby pitched a two-hitter in the opener to best double no-hit Nolan Ryan.

Hank Aaron, chasing Babe Ruth's career record of 714 home runs, didn't hit any homers, but stole his first base of the season and scored the tie-breaking run to help Atlanta defeat Cincinnati 6-4 after the Reds had taken the first game of a twin bill 5-3.

The Chicago Cubs beat Pittsburgh 10-9 in the completion of their April 21 suspended game before the Pirates took the regular game 3-2. Baltimore and Cleveland split with the Orioles taking the opener 8-4 and the Indians the nightcap 64.

In other games, Minnesota downed Oakland 5-1 and the Chicago White Sox overcame Kansas City 7-4. Both were the first of doubleheaders. In a late single game Houston played at Los Angeles.

Miami Heavy Favorite To Defeat All-Stars

Chicago (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins were 17-point favorites Thursday to whip the 1973 College All Stars convincingly Friday night in a warm up contest for their bid for every National Football League record for consecutive victories in the coming season.

The NFL champions and their youthful rivals, who will be rookies on NFL teams Saturday, should get temperatures in the low 80's for their clash on the Soldier Field artificial turf.

The game will be televised nationally by ABC with the kickoff at 8:30 p.m. (CDT).

The Dolphins have won their last 18 games including playoff and exhibition contests, and are only one short of tying the Chicago Bears' record of 18 for all games. But the All Star contest will not count for the Dolphins in this category.

Miami also is only two short of tying the Bears record of 17 straight victories in the regular season.

Dolphin coach Don Shula will send virtually the same team against the All-Stars that hung up the winning streak. Only two Dolphin regulars will be out of action. Running back Mercury Morris will be out with injuries and defense back Jake Scott is a holdout.

It was uncertain whether he would rely on Bob Griese or Earl Morrall, who shared the quarterback job last year, but both will see some action, and so might Jim Del Gaizo, a second year signal caller, and rookie Don Strock.

Shula might have a problem at running back since he alternated Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Mercury Morris last season. Csonka will be playing despite a pulled thigh muscle suffered last Saturday, but Morris is definitely out with a leg injury.

However, should the running game run into trouble, Shula can rely on wide receivers Paul Warfield, Ron Sellers and Howard Twilley and tight ends Marv Fleming and Jim Mandich to furnish passing targets for important yardage.

The All-Stars, coach John McKay conceded, have talent, but the lack of experience could be a handicap. Bert Jones of Louisiana State probably will start at quarterback with Joe Ferguson of Arkansas serving as his reliever. They will have some super receivers, such as Isaac Curtis of San Diego State, Steve Holden of Arizona State, Daryl Stingley of Purdue and Joe Wylie of Oklahoma.

Mc Kay also will be deeper in running backs than the Dolphins. Terry Metcalf of Long Beach and Chuck Foreman of Miami probably will start, leaving Southern California's Sam Cunningham, Purdue's Otis Armstrong, Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt and Nebraska's Bills Olds in reserve.

Lack of experience also might show up also in both the offensive and defensive lines of the All-Stars, though they will match the Dolphins in size and, probably, in speed.

The Dolphins will be seeking the 10th straight win for the pro's in the All-Star series. The Stars have won nine games, only three in the last 23 years, and the pro's 28, in the 40 games played in the series.

Poona Miss Wins Feature

By RANDY EICKHOFF

Star Sports Writer

Edward Werre had his doubts about Poona Miss' ability to win the seventh race at the State Fairgrounds Thursday before the start of the race, but once the starting gate opened, all doubts vanished.

"When she broke on top like she did," Werre explained, "I was pretty sure we'd win." And that's just what happened as Poona Miss took the first call away from the gate and held it all the way to the wire in the six furlong, $7,500 claiming race — the highest claiming price in Fairgrounds racing history.

"We broke from the No. 4 post position," Werre continued, "but by the time we made it to the first turn, I found myself on safe ground so I just dropped her in on the rail and she did all the rest."

Werre did encourage her a little, whipping her away from the post, but then he put his whip away and hand-rode her until the quarter pole.

"I hit her a couple of licks then," Werre said. "I thought another horse was coming up behind so I gave her a little encouragement there at the end, but she did all the rest."

Werre, who rode Poona Miss to a handicap win in Assiniboa Downs in Canada in a previous start, said that trainer John Gray just told him to ride the race the way he wanted.

"He just told me to do what I wanted," Werre said. "But I was a little afraid of some of those other horses in that field. That whole race was tough . . . any of the other horses had an equal shot at it.

"But that's horse racing," he shrugged. "That makes a good race. It isn't much fun when you get a sure-winner running. When you have a race like this, it's a little better feeling when you win."

The win by the 6-year-old chestnut mare was worth $1,380 to owner H. Kleinschmidt of Shickley, Neb. as Poona Miss covered the sprint in 1:14 3-5. That boosted her 1973 earnings to $4,715.

As a 10-1 longshot, Poona Miss returned $23.20, $7.20 and $4.80 to backers in the crowd of 4,912 while Johnie Rags returned $24.20 and $10.00. Greek Pie paid $4.00 as highly-regarded The Little Rage finished well back in the field of six.

Friday's feature race has Wayne Anderson riding Cresty Fose who drew topweight of 118 pounds over a mile distance against a field of nine.

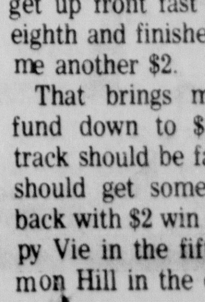
Aunt Priscilla Still Losing

I just don't know what to do anymore. My favorite little darlings seem to be getting nipped at the wire all the time.

Thursday I lost $2 on Fresh Sherry in the fourth after the little dear led all the way only to finish third in a photo finish while Kelly Blue just couldn't get up front fast enough in the eighth and finished third to cost me another $2.



Aunt Priscilla

Loses $4.00

That brings my $108 spree fund down to $84.60, but the track should be fast Friday, so I should get some of my losses back with $2 win tickets on Happy Vie in the fifth and Persimmon Hill in the eighth.

Ball Cage Wins May Be Voided

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Galveston school superintendent Eli Douglas Thursday asked University Interscholastic League (UIL) officials to void the district and bi-district basketball championships Ball High School won last season because a coach paid one youth $10 a week to play on the team.

The superintendent said he requested an immediate resignation from basketball coach George Hatch last Friday after Hatch admitted he "had been engaged in an illegal act, namely, breaking the amateur rule."

Ball's head football coach, Joe Wooley, also resigned at Douglas' request last week following criticism over his altering grade transcripts of former players Kerry Jackson and Mike Phillips to make the pair eligible to play at Oklahoma University.

The No. 2 ranked Sooners forfeited the eight games Jackson played in, including their Sugar Bowl triumph, after the grade tampering was discovered.

Irwin's 65 Captures Canadian Classic Lead

MONTREAL (UPI) — Hale Irwin, "really didn't feel like playing golf Thursday," but the rain that had been falling since Wednesday night stopped, and Irwin shot a course record seven under par 65 that gave him the first round lead in the Canadian Open championship.

Irwin's round, two better than the old course record of 67, left him with a two stroke advantage over Hubert Green and British Open champion Tom Weiskopf, both of whom shot 67's.

In third spot another stroke back were Lenny Thompson and Lee Trevino. Trevino won the Canadian Open the last time it was played here in 1971.

Weiskopf had a consistent round Thursday as he parred 13 holes and birdied the other five to leave him five under. Green, winner of the Tallahassee Open earlier this year, had seven birdies.

Trevino, the sentimental favorite here, was five under going onto the 16th but double bogeyed that hole, sending him to three under par. He picked up his final birdie of the round on the 18th where he dropped a 12-foot putt.

After bogeying the first hole, Irwin settled down and birdied numbers two, three, and four. After parring the next four holes Irwin came back and birdied another three consecutive holes, on nine, 10, and 11. Birdie number seven came on the 14th, and the final birdie of the day was on the par three 155-yard 17th where his six iron shot landed within a foot and a half of the cup.

"I was really hoping it would be rained out," said Irwin. "I didn't feel like playing. I could have used the day to relax, but I guess things worked out all right."

Realizing his reasoning may have sounded a bit odd, Irwin explained. "I just don't like to play in the rain because of my glasses. That gets to be a problem," he said. "Anybody who plays golf and wears glasses knows what that's like."

Irwin has worn contact lenses but decided before he turned pro that he would probably be in more wind and dust on the tour and changed back to glasses.

Most of Irwin's birdie putts were from less than five feet out, a fact he attributed to his fine chipping and iron game Thursday.

"I just played very well," he said, "I drove it very well, I hit awfully good iron shots, and putted reasonably well, even though I missed several putts that were very makeable."

Despite the faults that Irwin found with his record round, it marked the best round he has had all year, and he said it was the additional practice he took while here that made the difference.

"I played 18 yesterday and I shot a 31 on the front nine," he said. "When I finishhed my practice round I went back to practice for another hour or so. I especially worked on my chipping game, and I guess it paid off."

Riva Ridge, Secretariat Set To Meet

Helen Tweedy, operator of the stable, said Thursday the $250,000 would be given to charity.

The race was announced at a news conference by the New York Racing Association and Philip Morris Inc., which put up $200,000 of the purse for the event to be called the Marlboro Cup. The other $50,000 will be posted by the NYRA.

The distance for the race, to be televised nationally by CBS, will be 1 1/8 miles and the weights will be announced 10 days before the race by NYRA Racing Secretary Kenneth Noe Jr.

Jack Krumpe, president of the NYRA, said "our current thinking is that it will be a no-betting race." The event is subject to approval by the New York State Racing and Wagering Board.

Secretariat, the ninth 3-year-old ever to win the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and Belmont Stakes, is next scheduled to run in the $50,000 Whitney Aug. 4 and then in the $100,000-added Travers Aug. 10, both at Saratoga.

The Whitney, which also will be televised by CBS, will be Secretariat's first meeting with older horses and a victory in it would make the big chestnut thoroughbred racing's 13th $1 million winner. He currently has earned $970,242 on a record of 13 victories, one second and one third in 16 starts.

The 4-year-old Riva Ridge became the 12th millionaire, boosting his earnings to $1,009,727 when he set a world record of 1:52 2/5 for 1 3/16 miles in winning the Brooklyn Handicap July 4 under Ron Turcotte, who also is the regular rider of Secretariat.

It also was announced that Riva Ridge would run rain or shine. Although he has won 15 of 25 starts, he has shown a marked inability to handle a sloppy track.

Packers Draw Record Crowd

Green Bay, Wisc. (AP) — Jerry Tagge, a former University of Nebraska quarterback, completed nine of 16 passes for 98 yards Thursday afternoon in a lackluster Green Bay Packer intrasquad game before 56,263 fans at Lambeau Field.

The offense defeated the defense, 14-8, as Scott Hunter, last year's No. 1 quarterback but challenged by Tagge for the starting job this year, capped a 79-yard drive with a one-yard sneak in the third quarter. Hunter completed nine of 13 passes for 87 yards.

State Treasury Richer From Parimutuel Tax

By United Press International

The state treasury is $685,423 richer so far this year than it was at the same time last year due in large part to an increase in the parimutuel tax, according to State Revenue Department figures.

However, an increase in total wagering also had a hand in the increase even though one of the two tracks which have finished their 1973 meets already had five fewer days.

In all, horse racing fans at Fonner Park in Grand Island and Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha wagered $66,185,242 which was subject to taxation. Each track is allowed a $1 million exemption after which the tax is imposed.

Fonner had 40 days of racing this year, which was the same as last. It registered a slight increase in the taxable wagering from $10,987,823 last year to $11,442,772 this year.

Ak-Sar-Ben, on the other hand, offered 55 days of racing this year compared to 59 last year. But despite the decrease in the number of wagering days, the betting totals subject to taxation increased from $54,108,171 last year to $54,742,470 this year.

On the state treasury side of the balance sheet, it received $3,209,261 from the parimutuel tax this year compared to $2,623,838 last year.

Of the totals, Fonner paid in $399,512 in parimutuel taxes last year compared to $522,138 this year. Ak-Sar-Ben's parimutuel taxes were $2,124,326 lat year compared to $2,687,123 this year.

But even though wagering increases contributed to the increase in incoming revenue for the treasury, the bulk of the $685,423 boost resulted from legislative action this year.

The action was in the form of a bill which was adopted under the emergency legislation classification — Fonner Park was trying to get ready for its opening day at the time — increasing the parimutuel tax from 4 to 5 per cent.

Still to be tabulated are the results of the Fairgrounds meet in Lincoln, now in progress, which has a 27-day run this year compared to 30 days last year; Columbus with 25 days this year compared to 24 last year; and Atokad with 31 days this year compared to 32 last year.

Count Shows Quail Down

By United Press International

A quail whistle count survey indicated a decline of 13 per cent in the birds from last year, the State Game Commission said.

However, it noted that bobwhites were at a high level last year because of the mild 1971-72 winter, so comparing this year's population to last year's is not necessarily realistic.

The same routes are used every year, and the number of calls heard is an indication of a rise or fall in the population.

All areas showed a drop of five to 13 per cent this year, except for the Platte Valley from Grand Island to the Western border. In that section, bobwhite numbers dropped 31 per cent.

The commission said the probable cause was the long period of high water in the birds' primary lowland habitat.

Tractor Power Day Draws 10,000

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

If the agriculture engineering department at the University of Nebraska had consulted an oracle they couldn't have selected a better day for their annual Tractor Power and Safety Day.

"It is too wet to put up hay, too late to cultivate and wet enough so I don't have to irrigate, so I came," said a farmer from Grand Island.

The program is designed to demonstrate the use of the latest machines in the safest possible manner. This year the program was also aimed at various methods a farmer could use to cut back on the amount of fuel he uses to plant, raise and harvest his crops.

Efforts Praised

"Fuel is essential for the producer, it is needed to process food, to transport it to market. The consumer needs fuel to go to the store to buy food and you even need fuel for the garbage truck to haul away the leftovers," Kreuscher observed.

Ed Andersen, master of the Nebraska Grange, also had words of praise for the engineers' safety program. "Nebraska farmers are particularly fortunate to have a safety leader like Rollin Schnieder at a time when we are coming under the new Occupation Safety and Health Act (OSHA)," Andersen said.

Top crowd pleasers seemed to include a new mowing machine from Germany that mows, conditions and windrows hay at a speed of 15 miles an hour which is triple the speed of conventional haying equipment operates.

Big Bales

A pair of bailers that produce hay bales weighing from a half ton to a ton and a half in size were also drawing huge crowds. So many people crowded around the machines that operators had a difficult time moving the machines in the hay field.

Other equipment on display included atuomatic devices to enable a farmer to connect a wagon to a tractor without leaving the cab of his tractor, a wide variety of irrigation equipment, earth moving equipment, several types and sizes of loaders, many types of tillage and planting machinery and a lot of new tractors from several nations.

Livestock equipment included scales, portable corrals, watering and feeding equipment, fly foggers, portable buildings and an electric grain dryer that does not need LP gas which is expected to be in short supply at harvest time this fall.

10,000 Farmers

The show drew more than 10,000 farmers from all parts of Nebraska and some from other states. A group of farmers on a tour from Ohio spent much of the day at the exhibit.

Evidence of improved economic conditions for farmers was apparent in their requests for salesmen to call with more information on equipment they had at the show.

Equipment shortages may delay delivery of machines to the farmers who do have the cash to buy them.

"I have ten dealers who have tractors sold, but I have only three tractors available for delivery now," lamented a farm equipment representative from Souix City.

Interest in new farm machinery, particularly in labor saving devices for haying operations, has never been higher according to observers at the farm equipment exhibit.

Parole Board Frees Lincoln Man

By The Associated Press

Egan, 51, was convicted of second degree murder by the Lancaster County District Court and sentenced to life in prison, but was freed under a new law giving the board authority to free persons sentenced to life for second degree murder.

The board also paroled 11 other inmates, including Daniel Harrington, 30, Kearney, sentenced from Dodge County for possessing a forged instrument,; Robert G. Jakob, 30, Fremont, sentenced from Dodge County for manslaughter,; John Berry, 20, sentenced from Douglas County for robbery; Anthony Deane Jr.; 27, Omaha, sentenced from Douglas County for robbery and shooting with intent to wound or maim.

Terry Owne, 25, Omaha, sentenced from Douglas County for burglary; Owen Patton, 38, Omaha, sentenced from Douglas County for burglary; Gene Rose, 33, Omaha, sentenced from Douglas County for selling marijuana; Bennie DeBoe, 38, Ken, sentenced from Lancaster County for larceny as a bailee; Robert Platt, 28, Central City, sentenced from Lancaster County for escaping from prison.

Attorneys Critical Of Search

By United Press International

The State Supreme Court was asked Thursday to reverse the Keith County District Court marijuana possession conviction of Domenic Franklin Romonto.

Romonto's attorneys said the issue in the case is whether a search of the man's car which yielded the evidence later used to filed charges was legal or not.

"This case hinges on the question of the reasonableness of a search in a case where no arrest was made prior to the search nor was any arrest made after the search having to do with anything except the fruits of an unlawful search," the appeal brief said.

The attorneys told the court the "pretended purpose" of two state patrolmen for stopping Romonto was to check whether he had two license plates.

Romonto got out of his car and then without any warning or arrest, the brief said, he was searched bodily. After that, the attorneys said, the car was searched and a quantity of marijuana was found. It was only then, the court was told, that any arrest was made.

Baby Girl Finally Leaves Hospital

DENVER (AP) — After four months of round-the-clock medical attention Teresa Dawn Hyatt has gone home to Kimball, Neb.

The child was born prematurely March 29 at Sidney, Neb., suffering hayline membrane disease, a condition which can cause the lungs to collapse and acute hypoglycemia, low blood sugar.

A medical team from the Children's Hospital here flew to Sidney within two hours of the child's birth and began working to stabilize her condition.

Six and a half hours after birth, Teresa, was flown to Denver with a Children's hospital doctor and nurse. She weighed only 46 ounces and her condition was constantly monitored on the flight.

Inside the plane she was kept in an Isolette, a portable "environment" which kept air temperature between 90 and 94 degrees and provided her with oxygen.

"She's had a long, rough battle," said Dr. L. Joseph Butterfield, director of the hospital's newborn division, "and we're pleased with every pound she's put on."

When she was released Wednesday from the hospital she weighed 6 pounds, 9¾ ounces.

While at the hospital she showed improvement through the first two weeks, but then developed a hypothyroid condition. As doctors worked with her the second condition showed improvement and gradually her small lungs began to sustain her with oxygen.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth M. Hyatt of Kimball drove to Denvery every other weekend to see their third child while she was hospitalized.

"It's been a long time," Hyatt said as he took his daughter home for the first time.

Reckmeyer Services Held In Arlington

Arlington — Funeral services were held here Thursday for W. T. Reckmeyer, 61, Arlington Mortician and civic leader. He died Monday in an Omaha hospital.

A 1934 graduate of the University of Nebraska, he was treasurer of the Arlington Community Church, past master of the Masonic Lodge, member of Scottish Rite Temple, Tangier Shrine Temple and past worthy patron of the OES.

A member of the Arlington City Council, he was treasurer of the Arlington Community Club.

Threat Alleged; Woman Held In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha woman was held without bail Wednesday following her arrest by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for allegedly threatening a member of a federal grand jury that indicted her.

The woman, Mrs. Paulette Ransom, 26, was on probation for four years after pleading no contest to passing a forged government check.

She was placed on probation by Federal District Judge Robert V. Denny, who issued the warrant for her arrest when he was informed of the alleged threat.

Thomas D. Thalken, assistant U.S. district attorney, said Mrs. Ransom allegedly accosted the woman jury member and threatened her with bodily harm because she believed the woman voted for her indictment.

Thalken said he will request revocation of the woman's probation.

First Typing Class

New York — The first typing classes were offered about 1880 at the central branch of the Young Women's Christian Association in New York. Less than a decade later there were 60,000 typists in the United States.

At a time when a shopgirl could earn no more than $6 a week and an experienced saleswoman $12, an expert typist could command up to $20 a week.

Market Closes Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices closed mixed to slightly up Thursday after seesawing up and down throughout the trading session. Profit-takers moved in after eight preceding sessions of higher prices.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed up 1.41 at 934.53. Advancing issues on the Big Board squeaked out a 729 to 728 lead over declines as 1,794 issues were traded. Volume was a strong total of 18.41 million.

Analysts said the profit taking had been expected, considering the gains the market had made since a week ago Monday. The Dow in the past nine sessions has risen more than 47 points.

But the analysts also said that once the profit takers were done, gains might continue, at least for the near term.

"There's still a lot of buyers, and they're just waiting on the sidelines to catch the trend of the market. They'll be back in if selling is not strong," said Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co.

The NYSE's broadly based index of some 1,500 common stocks was up .09 at 58.54. The Amex's price-change index was up .03 at 23.54.

The market had been lower most of the morning, then began a gradual recovery in the afternoon. But toward closing, stocks began heading down again.

Wachtel noted that although the market had closed considerably higher Wednesday, with the Dow blue-chip indicator up more than 14 points, stocks had begun to fall near the close.

"The downward momentum we saw in the morning Thursday was a carry-over from Wednesday's close," he said.

Hog Prices Keep Rising

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Trade observers are wondering how high prices on the Omaha hog market can go before the inevitable lower reactions set in.

Thursday's session gave no sign of slowing, as record prices were established for the fourth straight day. Most barrows and gilts sold 1.00-1.50 higher than Wednesday's previous record highs. Sows were steady to 50 higher and reported closing strong at the upturn.

Butchers have gained anywhere from 4.00-6.00 on the Omaha market this week; and the gains have come on an expanded supply.

Slaughter steers and heifers were in nominal short supply with barely enough available to test the market.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Long View Is Needed In Investment Planning

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

Merryle Rukeyser

Confusion Reflected

The collapse of the dollar and the fear waves at the Stock Exchange reflect confusion over time zones.

There is a tendency among the financially unsophisticated, sometimes called suckers, to suffer from the George Horace Lorimer syndrome. Lorimer as the editor of the Saturday Evening Post during its days of greatness, with all his talents, tended to be intellectually nearsighted. He would discourage his contributors from writing about the design for living two or more years hence, aiming to focus instead on topics which would be hot six weeks hence when the magazine reached the news stands.

In the adventure of investing, however, the prudent should try to look further ahead. While the dollar was going through the long term transformation from being the world's strongest currency to its present status, there was a widespread tendency to ignore the handwriting on the wall. For years lecture audiences and readers yawned when analysts pointed to a cancerous danger signal in the chronic deficits of the United States in relation to its international disbursements and receipts. Yet recently when the situation was in the process of correction, the dams of confidence burst and pessimists were in the saddle.

Until two and half years ago, the weakness of the dollar sprang almost exclusively from imprudent federal spending overseas. For years such government generated imblances were reduced by an excess of U. S. exports over imports. Then, as we began to price some of our goods, such as selected steel products, out of global markets, we added to the international deficit by importing more than we exported.

After World War II, when there was a dollar shortage in the outside world, we undertook to correct it through our role as International Good time Charley. Though, at the start, the dollar seemed impregnable, we should have realized that even the strongest bridge has a limit to its capacity. In aiding former belligerents through the Marshall Plan and other schemes, we built up our international competitors. We subsidized them, providing the most sophisticated tools and technology, and other nations, led by Japan and West Germany, showed that we could no longer pay higher money wages than prevailed elsewhere in the expectation that our superior technology would be an offset.

Walter P. Reuther, late head of the Auto Union, perceived the trend early, and more than 15 years ago made pilgrimages to foreign labor leaders to persuade them to lift their domestic wage rates toward the higher American level. Some success was achieved. But, with the improving technologies overseas, even small differences became difficult to overcome.

In recent months, there was some backing and filling in respect to our balance of trade, and there is hope that dollar revaluation and other circumstances will bring better balance. Short term, the downward valuation of the dollar, after the customary time lag, should at least temporarily make U. S. products more attractive to foreigners and devaluation should, to some degree, discourage imports into this country.

Long term, the Nixon administration has opened up new doors. Instead of running up against the stone wall of trying to increase trade with competitors, the Administration through political detente with the Soviet Union and its satellites and Communist China has developed avenues for correcting the U. S. international imbalance by increasing trade with countries which need our technology, our know-how and some of our grains and other raw materials.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Commodities' Range Is Wide

There were limits gains in soybeans, soybean meal and broilers within minutes of the opening, but later in the session a selloff set in, generated on rumors that the government might establish new export controls on agricultural commodities.

The liquidation, begun by local professionals taking profits on long positions, set off a cascade of descending prices and on the decline many stop loss orders were uncovered, adding to the fall.

Oil Company Profits Go Up

. . . Motorists Pay Higher Prices For Gas

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Major oil companies are reporting substantial profit gains while motorists are paying higher prices for gasoline which is reported in short supply.

With the nation undergoing a fuel shortage, the companies that produce it enjoyed perhaps their most profitable quarter in April, May and June.

Demand has grown faster than the supply, and prices have climbed. In some areas, gasoline is being rationed by service stations whose supply has been limited by the producers.

Reporting second quarter and first half results, oil company executives said their refineries were running full blast in an effort to alleviate the shortage.

"The company is operating at maximum possible rates," said Otto Miller, chairman of Standard Oil Co. of California as he announced plans for a $450 million refinery expansion at Richmond and El Segundo, Calif., and Pascagoula, Miss., and Perth Amboy, N.J.

California Standard's second quarter earnings leaped 42 per cent to $181.7 million, or $2.14 a share, from $128.3 million or $1.51 a share, a year earlier.

"Everything we have is running virtually at maximum rates," said John E. Swearingen, chairman of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. His company's second quarter earnings rose 37 per cent to $121.3 million, or $1.74 a share.

Atlantic Richfield's profits soared 50 per cent, and a company spokesman said the biggest factor was higher gasoline prices. The company earned $68.4 million, or $1.20 a share, compared with $45.7 million, or 81 cents a share, in the like 1972 period.

Occidental Petroleum's picture brightened considerably in the three months ended June 30, when it earned $26.9 million, or 40 cents a share. In the like 1972 period, its $4 million profit represented a loss of one cent on a common share after payments were made on preferred securities.

Exxon's profits for the six months ended June 30 swelled 48 per cent to $1.02 billion, or $4.54 a share. Directors increased the quarterly dividend to $1.10 a common share from 95 cents.

Gulf, reporting for the first half, said its earnings rose to $360 million, or $1.80 a share, from $246 million, or $1.18 a share, last year.

Continental boosted its second quarter earnings 24 per cent to $51.7 million, or $1.03 a share.

"The second quarter earnings gain was due to improved performances from the company's worldwide petroleum and chemicals activities," said John G. McLean, Continental chairman. "These improvements were partially offset, however, by reduced earnings from coal operations, currency translation adjustments and higher interest charges."

Phillips Petroleum increased its second quarter profits by 25 per cent to $46.4 million, or 61 cents a share. Commonwealth had a 174 per cent jump to $7.1 million, or 50 cents a share. Marathon posted a 65 per cent gain to $27.6 million, or 92 cents a share. Ashland's 36 per cent gain pushed profits to $22.3 million, or 89 cents a share.

China Population Up

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — China's population passed 800 million last year, the U. N. Monthly Bulletin of Statistics estimated. It said the world's most populous country had 800,720,000 inhabitants in mid-1972, compared with 787,180,000 a year earlier

Mayor: NE Radial Is Not Being Built

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf emphatically denied Thursday that construction of the first leg of the Northeast Radial is under way.

Construction apparently began last week on an extension of Fremont from 70th to 84th. Plans call for the constroversial Northeast Radial to extend through that very same area.

Schwartzkopf said construction of the road will give the city access to the park so that work can get under way to build the park road. He refuted reports that the construction is preliminary groundwork for the diagonal.

Why 4 Lanes?

Councilman John Robinson asked the mayor during a budget session Thursday night what the prupose was in running a four-lane thoroughfare from 70th to 84th. The area to the east of 84th is primarily agricultural land and lies in the Stevens Creek watershed.

The mayor noted that the road will be two lanes — not four — and will be graveled.

If the transportation study shows a need for the radial, "then we'll put it through," Schwartzkopf stated. That study is in the process of being updated.

Schwartzkopf told The Star that the Fremont extension "will run along the same road bed as the Northeast Radial."

"We may pave this eventually," he said.

Schwartzkopf said $25,000 for the grading and graveling work was channeled out of street department funds.

Funds Impounded

On April 16, the City Council impounded all funds appropriated to the radial project for the remainder of this fiscal year. That move froze all funds except for completion of contractural obligations.

The east-west road will give the park department access into Mahoney Park so that a park road running north off that street can be built. Plans call for an oval track to run around the northern portion of the park.

At the opposite end of the tract, park department personnel were grading an area where four baseball fields will be located.

The ball diamonds and park road will lie to the north of the Fremont extension, while the proposed 18-hole golf course will lie to the south.

Redevelopment Said Not Until Next Year

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf told city lawmakers Thursday that implementation of actual neighborhood redevelopment projects under the new Community Development Department is still one year down the road.

In discussing the mayor's proposed $31,979 budget for the new department, City Council members asked for an outline of the department's projects for the upcoming year.

Schwartzkopf said, "We won't get going on any physical developments until next year."

Authority Outlined

City Atty. Dick Wood pointed out that state law on community development outlines the authority and powers of a municipal urban redevelopment projects.

But Councilman Steve Cook said he wanted a job description for the director of the new department.

Cook said the department, "could be the most important thing we have done in city government in recent years."

The council also asked Personnel Director Walt Mitchell to prepare a report on the cost versus the benefits of having park department personnel live in city houses.

The question also came up last year at budget time and was later dropped.

Longstanding Policy

Mitchell said the policy has developed over the years "and in some cases is a condition of employment."

He said the city is getting some benefit out of having city employes live on park sites who are available "seven days a week, 24 hours a day."

Council members questioned whether the personnel should be charged rent for the houses and directed Mitchell to report back to them.

Library Budget

The council also tentatively approved a $1,973,115 library budget and asked Library Director Charles Dalyrmple to again look into joint use of facilities with the school system.

Councilman Bob Sikyta brought the question up, somewhat to the surprise of Councilwoman Boosalis, who has been pushing for such joint use for a number of years.

Sikyta said, "I've heard the pitch before why it doesn't work. But it seems to me something can be done — the park department's working with the schools."

Boosalis suggested looking into the possibility of having branch libraries built adjacent to schools so that parking lot facilities and lights could be shared.

The council also reviewed the governmental liason's and housing administrator's budget.

'Young Men In Politics' Jaycee Forum

A feature of the state Jaycee convention in McCook this weekend will be a Saturday noon forum entitled "young men in politics," Jaycee officials said Thursday.

Involved in the discussion will be young men involved in politics on the local, state and national levels.

N-Triple-C Files With FCC Expanded Tariff

The Nebraska Consolidated Communications Corp. (N-Triple-C) this week filed with the Federal Communications Commission an expanded tariff for service to the metropolitan Kansas City area.

The tariff became effective July 22. The company had earlier filed tariffs for service from Chicago west through Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska.

N-Triple-C's first segment — Chicago to Omaha-Lincoln — of its proposed nationwide communications network has been in operation with customer service since June 1.

The firm's president, Clifford E. Thompson, said the segment from Omaha to the Kansas City area is undergoing final testing with customer service slated in August.

That's strange, because there is a real man's man moving from the east to Lincoln in August. He will seek gainful employment with future growth potential. All he will ask is a chance to prove his worth and a promise that his proven abilities and honesty will lead to higher responsibilities. Some Lincoln firm will one day be ahead, for hiring this 33 year old husband/father

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 7-27
